Britain Defends Red Trade

WASHINGTON (AP) — —President Johnson and British Prime Minister Douglas-Home announced agreement Thursday on Southeast Asia policy. Their windup communique by-passed U.S.-British differences over trading with the Reds but the British leader made plain to newsmen that England's trade will continue.

No Arms

At a news conference climaxing his two-day visit, Douglas-Home stressed that Britain will send no arms, aid or general-purpose loans to Cuba or strategic goods to Reds anywhere. But he said England opposes boycotting any business deals because of a country's political creed.

Harmonious

In his meeting with reporters, Douglas-Home said his two days of White House sessions dealing with issues around the world were harmonious except for the failure to agree on Cuban trade and the extending of long-term credit to finance sales to the Soviet bloc.

The United States opposes this as a form of aid but London disagrees and Douglas-Home outlined his views to newsmen this way:

Britain is a crowded island which must trade to live. "We don't believe in boycotts and therefore do not discriminate between one country and another according to its political creed. . .

Not Fanatic

"We have always felt the more comfortable one (a Communist) is the less likely he is to be a fanatical Communist."

Currently the target of U.S. criticism are Britain's sales of hundreds of buses to Havana in face of the U.S. embargo policy and British talks with the Soviets on selling chemical plants under credits of 10-15 years.

On Cuba, Douglas-Home noted British exports had dwindled from $42 million in 1959, the year Fidel Castro took over, to $5.3 million in 1963. And he said Britain fully understands U.S. concern over Castro's Communist subversion in the Americas.

As for the broad effort to ease cold war disputes, the British chief listed possible disarmament agreements on exchanging observers against surprise attack and Johnson's proposal for a nuclear weapons freeze as offering the most promising prospects.

Johnson wants to isolate the Castro economy. Douglas-Home says British sales, like the recent deal for British buses for Cuba, are all right, provided they do not include strategic goods.

On extending credit to the Communist bloc—a topic also omitted in the communique — the Johnson view is that long-term credits amount to aid to the Reds. Douglas-Home sees an economically fat Communist world as less likely to be aggressive and favors long-term commercial credits for sales to the bloc.

Both U.S. and British sources see this old disagreement on these two points as continuing indefinitely.

The State Department sought to dispel press speculation that the United States is planning to retaliate against British products because of British sales to Havana.

Press officer Robert J. McCloskey said the U.S. government does not plan such retaliation, and stories so suggesting "are without foundation, and highly irresponsible."

Hugh Scott Blasts Johnson For Bobby Baker 'Cover-Up'

STROUDSBURG — Republican U. S. Senator Hugh Scott tore into the Democratic administration of Lyndon B. Johnson last night in an articulate, sometimes bombastic, always polished speech.

At a Lincoln Day Dinner of the Monroe County Republican Party at the Penn-Stroud Hotel, Scott said "the use of power by the Johnson administration to cover up or prevent the investigation by the U.S. Senate into the Bobby Baker case is the major question now."

Scott, a member of the investigating Senate Rules Committee, repeated his charge that "raw material from F.B.I. files had been leaked to newspapermen for the purpose of destroying the reputation of a witness."

He condemned "the attempt from within the White House by men within the White House, identified by New York Times, New York Herald Tribune and weekly magazine reporters, to smear a witness whose testimony is embarrassing to people in high places."

Scott was referring to Don B. Reynolds, business partner of Bobby Baker, who had testified that he gave a stereophonic set to President Johnson while selling Johnson $100,000 in life insurance.

Three Dances

The first term senator who seeks re - election next November said his wife had asked him why President Johnson danced with her three times at a White House party.

"Once for your beauty. Once for your charm. And once because I am on the Rules Committee invesigating Bobby Baker," Scott replied.

'Responsible Opposition'

Scott described the Republican party as "the party of responsibility, the party of responsible opposition, and the party of compassion," which offers "a constructive alternative."

He cited Republican votes which helped pass the tax cut and civil rights legislation. "We said reduce the budget, and we got a reduced budget on the face of it, and so we supported the tax bill," Scott said.

With adroit sarcasm, Scott criticized Democratic foreign policy and handling of recent foreign crises.

"What reason do we have for boys drafted in Monroe County, who want to come home. . . by what justification do we send draftees to Cyprus to let British volunteers go home because there is an election coming up there and they might have to re-enforce the draft," Scott asked.

Head Table

Seated at the head table were the Rev. Peter K. Emmons, who gave the invocation; State Senator William Z. Scott, who introduced U. S. Senator Scott; Harold B. Kresge, county GOP chairman; and Phillip Williams, toastmaster.

The Pocono Community Chorus sang a special Lincoln Day program under direction of Richard Manheim and narration by Robert Williams.

Chester Schools Picketed

CHESTER, Pa. (AP) Waving placards and chanting freedom songs, about 300 persons, many of them children, demonstrated peacefully Thursday against what they call prolonged and unnecessary racial segregation in Chester schools.

The main object of the demonstration was to persuade Negroes to keep their children out of these schools for the day. Stanley Branche, head of the Committee for Freedom Now, a local civil rights group, said the boycott was the result of de facto segregation, and what he called the school board's neglect of the schools' physical condition.

Senate Meets For 2½ Seconds

WASHINGTON (AP) — With only two members present, the Senate held one of its quickie sessions Thursday.

Officially, it was clocked at 2½ seconds, ½ second shy of the record 2-second session last Dec. 27.

The Senate is giving itself a holiday until next week to allow Republicans to make Lincoln Day speeches across the country this week.

Under the Constitution, however, it must meet every three days in at least a token session unless both Senate and House adopt resolutions providing otherwise.

Sen. Lee Metcalf, D-Mont., presided and Sen. Frank Carlson, R-Kan., was the only other member present.

Will Dallas Try Ruby?

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Chief defense counsel Melvin Belli said Thursday he thinks "the chances are pretty good" that the judge will tell lawyers to try to find a Dallas jury for Jack Ruby's murder trial.

Dist. Judge Joe B. Brown said he will rule at 2 p.m. Friday on the defense's effort to win a transfer of Ruby's trial.

"I'm sure we can't find a jury here," Belli said.

The trial of the man who killed President John F. Kennedy's accused assassin is scheduled to begin Monday unless Brown decides to move it to another Texas city.

Witness Talks Of Hoffa Bribe

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Over defense objections, a Nashville insurance man told Thursday of reporting a bribe offer he said he received as a juror in James R. Hoffa's 1962 conspiracy trial.

James E. Haggerty, the Teamsters Union president's Detroit lawyer, called the testimony of insurance agent James C. Tippens, "compounded hearsay." Harry Berke, his Chattanooga lawyer, called it "rankest hearsay."

$1/5 Million Missile Misses

ROSWELL, N.M. (AP — A $1.5-million Atlas missile exploded and burned in an underground launch silo 32 miles east of here Thursday — the second such accident within a year.

There were no injuries, the Air Force reported.

The 82½-foot missile was being brought to the surface in what appeared to be a practice alert. It exploded as it was about one-third way up.

Sinatra Tells Kidnap Version

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Frank Sinatra Jr. told Thursday how he was kidnaped from Lake Tahoe last Dec. 8 "with a gun in my ribs" and said that he cooperated out of fear to elude a police road block.

The singer, now turned 20, also pointed to defendant Barry Keenan, 23, as one of the men who he said abducted him.

The defense previously had charged that Sinatra cooperated with the defendants because he wanted publicity to "make the girls swoon over him as they did over his papa."

Political Pot Bubbles For GOP

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller questioned the value of sending a man to the moon and Sen. Margaret Chase Smith said Thursday she would have no part of a smear campaign based on the Bobby Baker case.

These two rivals for the Republican presidential nomination threaded busily through New Hampshire while a continent away, Sen. Barry Goldwater detoured into Nevada while laying siege to California's big bloc of 86 Republican national convention votes.

Midway between, Republicans and Democrats in St. Louis got ready for separate rallies Friday featuring President Johnson and 1,000 Missouri Republicans.

New York's Gov. Rockefeller worked his way through a crowded 16-hour schedule that took him into 10 New Hampshire communities. He was in the second day of a three-day person-to-person tour looking for support in the state's March 10 presidential preference primary.

Answering workers' questions during a factory tour, Rockefeller said the Democratic administration revived the manned moonflight program as "something dramatic" after the Bay of Pigs invasion fiasco. He questioned whether it is worth the expense.

He contended an unmanned flight would yield 95 per cent of the information at far less cost.

Mrs. Smith, the "left of Goldwater, right of Rockefeller" campaigner from Maine, spent the day in Concord and Manchester.

"I think graft and conflict of interest can well become major issues," she said in an interview, "but I will have no part of a campaign based on the Baker case."

Former Nazi Uses Noose To Beat Trial

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) —Dr. Werner Heyde hanged himself in prison Thursday and escaped trial on charges that he was the man who headed Adolf Hitler's program for killing 200,000 mental and physical defectives in World War II.

The suicide of the scholarly, 61-year-old professor of medicine—fourth death of a Nazi war crimes trial defendant this month — followed by one day Friedrich Tillmann's fatal fall from an eighth-floor window in Cologne in what the state prosecutor, Fritz Bauer, said also was a suicide.

Heyde and Tillmann were to have gone on trial next Tuesday at Limburg as the two top defendants accused of responsibility for the slaughter of 70,000 of the 200,000 defectives exterminated in Nazi death camps.

Earlier this month, Ewald Peters, top bodyguard on Chancellor Ludwig Erhard's visit in December to President Johnson's ranch in Texas, hanged himself in his cell in Bonn rather than face trial in the mass killing of Jews in Russia in World War II.

Shortway To Spurt Further

CLEARFIELD, Pa. (AP) —State Sen. Z. H. Confair of Williamsport pushed a plunger that touched off a dynamite blast Thursday at groundbreaking ceremonies for construction of another part of the Keystone Shortway.

A group of about 50 gathered in the wind and rain at Elliott State Park nine miles north of Clearfield to watch Confair, president of the Keystone Shortway Association, set off the blast.

Represented were the State Highways Dept., the U. S. Bureau of Roads and the Marsolino Construction Co. of Uniontown.

Cypriot Blood Flows

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Vicious communal fighting at Limassol sputtered into an uneasy cease-fire late Thursday while talks to end just such violence continued without announced results at the presidential palace in Nicosia.

Battles in the south coast port of Limassol killed at least 10 Turkish Cypriots and one Greek Cypriot. A total of a dozen were wounded.

It was the worst flareup since last Christmas.

On the diplomatic front, U.S. Undersecretary of State George W. Ball met twice with President Archbishop Makarios—then unexpectedly decided to remain another day for another round.

He and a British envoy, Cyril Pickard, have met Makarios four times since they presented their joint plan to land an international peace-keeping force on this Mediterranean hotspot.

The fact Ball is remaining for additional conferences is interpreted here two ways: That the Americans and British are offering new amendments to the plan which will be carried back to Ankara and Athens for approval, or that Makarios is having a hard time making up his mind.

Asks Showdown

Scranton Claims Labor Is Lying

HARRISBURG (AP) — —Gov. Scranton Thursday invited Pennsylvania labor leaders into a face-to-face meeting to discuss his proposed unemployment compensation revision.

At the same time the governor had some harsh words for what he termed "falsehoods" being disseminated by labor opposing his proposals.

"Information is going out, primarily from labor that is absolutely false," Scranton declared. He said he wanted to have the meeting with labor to present them with what he called the facts of unemployment compensation.

He stressed that the meeting would not be to effect some compromise program. The plan he has presented, he said, is the plan his administration intends to fight for.

The governor presented to the legislature earlier this week his proposed plan for revision of the state's unemployment compensation system.

Key features of the program call for a tax increase for most employers—up to $35 million in the first year—and a net reduction in total benefits by an equal amount. Benefits would be reduced by elimination of the so-called double dip — a second round of benefits without any intervening employment. Weekly benefits in many cases would be boosted, however, from the present maximum of $40 a week to $45.

Harry Boyer, president of the Pennsylvania AFL-CIO commented:

"The only thing I can say is: At no point since introduction of the bill has the governor either approached me or discussed with me in any way any parts of this bill.

"I await his written invitation. I am available for a meeting for the purposes of discussing the impact of this legislation at a time mutually agreeable."

Charles Shudden, legislative representative of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, said such a meeting would be an "exercise in futility," adding:

"The time for sitting down has passed. How can you discuss something which the governor has foreclosed."

At the same time the governor contended a check by his office with "many labor leaders" indicated a great deal of support for the revision program he declined to identify the leaders.

In another development Scranton said he had been misquoted in a published report from Kansas City that quoted him as saying he did not have the "drive" to become President.

Misquoted On 'Drive' Story Scranton Says

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Scranton charged Thursday he had been misquoted in a published report from Kansas City that quoted him saying he did not have the "drive" to become president.

The governor explained yesterday at a press conference that there was no compelling reason that would drive him to seek the presidential nomination at the Republican convention in San Francisco in July.

Scranton has contended that he will accept an "honest and sincere draft" because it would be his duty.

The Kansas report quoted the governor as saying that he "doesn't have the excitement for the presidency" that he had when he ran for congress and governor.

Dad Drops Charges Against Teacher

BRODHEADSVILLE — Elwood Hubbard told The Daily Record last night that he will not continue to press assult and battery charges against Roger E. Arnold, a teacher at Polk Twp. Elementary School, charged with striking Hubbard's son.

Hubbard and his wife met yesterday morning in the high school with John Mills, supervising principal of Pleasant Valley Schools; Harry T. Young, assistant supervising principal; Roger E. Arnold, the teacher involved, and John Rinker, a school director from Chestnuthill Twp.

After their discussion Hubbard told the group he would drop the charges against the teacher.

Hubbard said, "I arrived at the decision sometime during the early hours of today. I feel that Mr. Arnold has learned a lesson he will never forget and that an act like this should be forgiven but not forgotten."

"Another point I would like to clear up is why I did not attend the joint school committee meeting of the Pleasant Valley High School in Brodheadsville last night. I was not in the best frame of mind and decided to attend another meeting that I had scheduled before the situation arose," he said.

Floyd Kellogg, Stroudsburg justice of the peace, said Hubbard was in his office yesterday afternoon and said he was not going to press the charges.

Hubbard preferred charges against Arnold after he was told by his son, Duane, that the teacher had struck him three times. The last blow caused one of the child's eyes to blacken, he said.

The Joint School Committee of Pleasant Valley High School, at a Wednesday meeting, discussed the situation and informed the administration to tell all the teachers in the jointure not to strike any children about the face or head.

The board also directed John Mills, superintendent of the schools, to tell Arnold "in no uncertain terms that he (Arnold) should never again touch any child in his class to punish him."

Judge To Charge Jury Today In Harris-Small Case

By Gil Murray
Daily Record Reporter

STROUDSBURG — A jury of six women and six men yesterday heard impassioned summations by attorneys in the Hal H. Harris versus Joseph H. Small libel trial.

Judge James B. Rutherford will deliver his charge to the jury this morning at 9:30.

Atty. Kennard Lewis, counsel for Harris, likened the defense case to an "octopus who emits an inky black fluid and escapes in the confusion." He said during the 3-day trial lawyers for Small attempted to cloud the real issue.

Atty. Phillip Williams, Small's chief counsel, pictured Harris as a veteran politician who, "might have enjoyed this whole courtroom procedure" and who is living in the past and still running in the 1961 election.

The case, entering its fourth day today, was brought by Harris and is centered around a political advertisement Small printed in the paper three days before the 1961 Stroudsburg mayoralty election.

Seeks $5,000 or More

Harris, who served as the borough's chief burgess for 22 years, claims the advertisement damaged his reputation and contributed to his defeat by Small in the 1961 election. He seeks damages in excess of $5,000.

The advertisement, printed Nov. 4, 1961 in The Daily Record, read:

"Yes, $100,000 is a lot of money, but it took George Robinson (borough solicitor) and a judgment in Monroe County Court to collect it! Think . . . then vote Joe Small for mayor of Stroudsburg."

Among those called to testify yesterday were four character witnesses for the defense. Harold J. Pine Jr. of Stroudsburg; the Rev. William Wunder, pastor of the Grace Lutheran Church in East Stroudsburg; Henry Baustien of Stroudsburg and Edward Doran, former Stroudsburg mayor.

In rebuttal, Lewis called Capt. David Hallock, USA (Ret.) of Stroudsburg and Harris.

When the Rev. Mr. Wunder took the stand he depicted Small as a Sunday school teacher and "a faithful member of our parish."

"Bombastic" Person

Characterizing Harris' reputation in the community, Wunder said, "Hal was a bombastic and aggressive person in public and generally his language was abusive . . . and his reputation wasn't generally good."

When questioned about the effect the advertisement had on the community, he said, "It seemed perhaps Hal Harris owed the borough some money but not $100,000."

Baustien said, "I know of no one who believed there was a $100,000 shortage by Mayor Harris. At no time did anyone I talked with say there was a $100,000 judgment."

Under cross examination Baustien said people he talked to about Small's advertisement had read a previous advertisement printed by Harris claiming Harris collected more than $100,000 in fines for the borough.

Pine, who testified he knew Harris only from street conversations, said if Harris owed the borough $100,000 "this would have been front page news."

He termed Small's advertisement as "just another political ad." He said Harris' reputation in the community had "lessened" in the four years preceding the advertisement.

Under cross examination, Pine admitted he and Small belonged to the Elks Club in East Stroudsburg.

Doran — who was beaten by Harris in the 1961 Democratic primary race for mayor — said even though he was a registered Democrat, he "campaigned vigorously for Small" in the 1961 general election.

Doran is a former burgess of Stroudsburg, serving from 1959 to 1962. He also served on council for eight years.

He said none of the people he talked to during the campaign mentioned the Small advertisement.

While being questioned by Williams, Doran said, "I would say he (Harris) had a two-fold reputation. One for getting things done and the other for being difficult to get along with."

Harris' treatment of subordinates was "quite severe," he said.

Refutes Testimony

Harris was recalled to the witness stand to refute testimony claiming he was absent from Stroudsburg during the 1955 flood, that he was not a property owner and had never owned an automobile.

Asked where he was during the flood, Harris said: "I was at my home up to 2 a.m. Then I got in touch with Gov. George Leader, who came to my house and brought Anthony J. Drexel Biddle the adjutant general with him. I took them to the scene of the flood and showed them the trouble we were in.

"The next day I had Joe Lawler (Joseph Lawler, secretary of highways at the time) here to put in temporary bridges between the two boroughs. We got the mess cleared up in 28 working days."

He said he owned six cars during his life and drove them himself. Before 1940 he owned, "the Indian Queen Hotel, a barber shop and property at Pocono Creek," he said.

Capt. Hallock was asked only one question. Testifying to Harris' reputation in the community, he said it was one of "having served his community well over a period of many years."

Neither witness was cross examined by the defense.

During his summation Williams told the jury, "You have the difficult job to determine what was in the defendant's mind when he printed that ad. Was it in the exercise of his right as a campaigner for a responsible job?"

He then attempted to discredit testimony given in Harris' favor. Taking the witnesses one at a time, Williams told the jury:

"Let's take the testimony of Harold Waidelich (Stroudsburg pharmacist). He said he waits on 100 people a day and on the day the ad was printed he talked to 50 people about it.

"He said all these people felt the ad was harmful to Harris and others changed their opinion on voting for him.

"I would remind you, that when a witness is on the stand you should observe his demeanor and determine whether or not he has anything to gain. Waidelich was a political friend of the plaintiff's."

He said Jack Mullins of Stroudsburg sold insurance to Harris and was not nearly as explicit as Waidelich in recalling particular people who thought the advertisement injured Harris.

Advertisement's Impact

Williams told the jury, Lowell Cross, retired advertising director of The Daily Record, was called as an "alleged" expert witness to testify the advertisement's impact on the mind of the average newspaper reader.

"When Cross completed his testimony he was only able to say what the impact was on him, not on the average reader," Williams said.

In an attempt to discredit Harris' testimony, Williams urged the jurors to remember his manner on the stand when he said "council wouldn't tell him how to operate his office."

"Harris gave the impression that a judgment to collect $250 in salary was coincidental with the judgment of $1,468. But, if you look at the official borough minutes you find the court case to collect salary was in 1944 and the judgment was filed in 1947.

"It's stretching things a little to say money was held back because council wouldn't pay his salary," he said.

Williams told the jury to study the way Harris "maligned" others. He said during the trial Harris referred to a Stroudsburg councilman as "that famous member of Alcoholics Anonymous" and called the Stroudsburg Water Authority's attempt to buy the water system as "a million dollar steal."

In closing Williams said, "This is a case of a poor loser. He can dish it out but he can't take it. This plaintiff has fooled the people of Monroe County long enough."

When Lewis made his closing remarks to the jury he attacked Small's right to publish the advertisement.

"It is a campaigner's privilege to inform the public. We admit that under certain circumstances fair comment is acceptable.

"But it is not his right to put a false fact in the paper. There is a difference between an opinion and a $100,000 judgment that took George Robinson to collect," he said.

Official Minutes Better

Lewis said:

"Had he chosen to copy the borough minutes verbatum his conclusions might have been true. The privilege of a campaigner cannot be a license to commit libel.

"The ad wasn't a little white lie and it can't be laughed out of court because Hal Harris is a little eccentric.

"The defendant delivered political assassination not with a bullet but with a pen that tolled the death knell.

"I asked Small why he left out the name in the ad. He said no reason. I asked him again and he still had none.

Feared Libel

"I can tell you why he left the name out. He thought if he put it in he would be sued for libel. But at that time he was not aware of the law concerning innuendo.

"Hal Harris has lived a long time and did a great deal for this borough. Every time a resident flushes a toilet, drives down a paved street or parks his car at a parking meter they should think of Hal Harris.

"The jury must right this wrong. This man is entitled to be vindicated. This ad must stand on its own two feet.

"You should vindicate Hal Harris and punish Mr. Small and make this county a better place to live in.

Cowboys In Pennsylvania?

SOMERSET, Pa. (UPI) — Would-be cowboys got a chance to show their stuff Thursday when a tractor-trailer loaded with cattle ran off the Pennsylvania Turnpike and overturned near the Somerset Interchange. Police and firemen rounded up all but eight of the 36 head of cattle and loaded them aboard another truck bound for Philadelphia markets.

Cigarette Firm Sued For Cancer

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A retired truck driver sued the Liggett & Myers obacco Co. for $1 million Wednesday, saying he got throat cancer after smoking their cigarettes for almost 30 years.

In a suit filed in U.S. District Court, Anthony France, 57, of Pittsburgh, said he has been smoking Chesterfield cigarettes since 1935 and has smoked two packs a day since 1949.

France said he also has smoked L. & M. cigarettes, another Liggett & Myers product, for the past two years.

France said he became chronically hoarse four years ago. In 1962, the suit said, the ailment was diagnosed as a throat malignancy which was removed from his right vocal cord in March, 1963.

Thirsty Thieves Steal Whiskey

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. (AP)—Thieves entered the Pennsylvania state liquor store in Ashley overnight and made off with several cases of whiskey, police reported Thursday.

Police said the thieves removed four iron bars and a heavy mesh screen from a window to gain entry. The intruders then removed the cases of whiskey from the stock area.

Employes are conducting an inventory to determine the exact loss.

Sold At Loss To Play Nags

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A Philadelphia merchant testified Wednesday that he sold thousands of dollars of merchandise from 20 to 70 per cent off in order to get money to wager on the horses.

At an involuntary bankruptcy hearing, Stanley Huberman, of Cherry Hill, N. J., said he had three winning days out of a 45-day season at the track, and even these didn't amount to much.

With $6,000 he won at the Atlantic City race track last August, Huberman said he purchased the S. Streinbrecker & Co. furniture firm here.

He testified that using the 26 year-old firm's credit rating, he bought merchandise throughout the country by telephone.

He said he would sell the merchandise at the discount and take the money to the track.

His creditors said he had disposed of more than $100,000 worth of merchandise in less than three months. Atty. Meyer Maurer said Huberman has admitted to $90,000 of this.

Huberman testified that after his first deal, when he purchased $16,000 worth of toasters, radios and hair dryers and sold them at 20 per cent below cost, he got so far behind he knew he couldn't pay his debts.

The interrogation will be resumed Feb. 24.

Bible-Reading Okay Sought

HARRISBURG (AP) — A proposed amendment to the federal Constitution authorizing Bible reading in public schools was endorsed unanimously Wednesday by the legislative committee of the Pennsylvania Council of Republican Women.

The action supported a resolution adopted without dissent by council delegates at their 43rd annual convention last November.

The committee specifically approved a joint resolution pending in the state House of Representatives which would urge Congress to call a convention to consider a Bible-reading amendment.

Editor Enters Scott Race

HARRISBURG (UPI) — W. Henry MacFarlahd, of Philadelphia, Thursday filed nomination petitions with the State Elections Bureau seeking the Republican nomination for the U. S. Senate seat now held by Sen. Hugh Scott.

MacFarland, who lists himself as an editor and publisher, lives at 2834 Almond St., Philadelphia, in the 10th Division of the 25th Ward. Unless he withdraws he would oppose incumbent Scott for the GOP nomination at the April primary.

5 Convicts Back In Jail

ALMONESSON, N. J. (UPI)—The last of five convicts who broke out of the Broadmeadows Prison near Media, Pa., Jan. 27 was back in custody Thursday after being taken by surprise at the home of an acquaintance.

The fugitive, Earl Brogan, 33, of Upper Darby, Pa., offered no resistance when three state troopers crashed into the house Wednesday night.

Brogan was serving a term for parole violation when he and three other men broke through the celing of their cellblock, dropped to the ground and fled. A fifth man escaped several hours later by walking away from a boiler room where he worked.

The FBI recaptured the three men who fled with Brogan Sunday at a motel in Cardiff, N. J. The fifth man was arrested last week in Wilmington, Del.

Residents Fear Huge Pipeline

WEST CHESTER, Pa. (AP)—The Chester County commissioners asked the Public Utility Commission Thursday for "maximum safeguards" in the construction of a 1,600 mile pipeline through here.

At a hearing, the commissioners presented a letter expressing "grave concern over the fact that this builder is a private company seeking a lucrative profit."

C. Gilbert Hazlett took the letter to the PUC hearing to make it part of the record.

The commissioners also noted that the installation would greatly affect taxation in the county at local levels because of the dangers to the property.

Some property owners have suggested that they be given a one-third assessment on their property near the pipeline.

The Colonial Pipeline Co., which is making the installation denies allegations of the property owners that the pipe is defective.

In Lebanon County

Man Charges Persecution For Bible Reading Stand

HARRISBURG (UPI) — Two high state officials Thursday began an investigation into charges by a Lebanon man that he is being "persecuted" for his stand against public school bible reading.

Atty. Gen. Walter E. Alessandroni asked Deputy State Police Commissioner Frank McKetta and State Agriculture Secretary Leland H. Bull to investigate the arrest earlier this week of James N. Snavely, 39, of Lebanon RD 3, on a two-year-old charge of failure to obtain dog licenses.

The agriculture department enforces the state's dog laws.

Snavely was arrested Monday and brought to the home of Justice of the Peace Mary Spallone, where he said he was told to pay $53 in fines and costs or go to jail. Mrs. Spallone said the arrest had nothing to do with his stand on bible reading.

Dist. Atty. Alvin B. Lewis Jr. of Lebanon County described the arrest as "police state tactics."

The American Civil Liberties Union has filed a federal suit on Snavely's behalf challenging the policy of "permissive" bible reading at the Cornwall-Lebanon joint suburban school district.

Snavely claims his son and daughter are compelled to participate in bible reading and prayer exercises in violation of U. S. Supreme Court decisions banning the practices.

The school board contends that the rulings were aimed only at compulsory prayers and bible reading and do not apply to the district because children may leave the room during the exercises.

Snavely, a $3,400-a-year city employe, claims he and his family have been "cursed, threatened and condemned" since the suit was filed.

The suit is scheduled to be argued Feb. 24 in U.S. District Court at Lewisburg.

Girl Gets Dad's Kidney

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A 16-year-old Pennsylvania girl received a kidney from her father yesterday in a transplant operation.

Patricia Hunter, 16, of McConnellsburg, Pa., received the kidney from her father at the Medical College of Virginia Hospital.

A hospital spokesman said both Miss Hunter and her father, Robert H. Hunter, were "doing well."

Miss Hunter's kidneys had virtually ceased to function. She has been hospitalized since Christmas with Bright's disease.

Her father came to Richmond several weeks ago for tests to see if his daughter's body would receive his kidney.

His daughter was flown to Richmond Tuesday for the operation.

Sex Act Has Public Impact, Bergethon Tells Students

EASTON, Pa. (AP)—K Roald Bergethon, president of Lafayette College, said Wednesday the college "would be delinquent in its obligations to its students if its rules implied that the sexual act is merely a private affair without public consequences."

He told a student convocation that unwanted pregnancies, unwanted marriages and high venereal disease rates resulting from extra-marital relationship "not only have public consequences but public problems caused by the so-called private act." He continued:

"Even when these unfortunate consequences do not occur extramarital relations have a public impact."

Bergethon said some students "are beginning to expect colleges to diminish or to eliminate standards with respect to private social and sexual development."

"Our aim at Lafayette," he went on, "must be to maintain standards that will cultivate student awareness of how their personal actions affect society.

"It may be that our customs and judgments with regard to the sexes need re-alignment and refinement so that standards may be more humane and judgments more individual than has been the case. But the premise that sex relations are a private affair cannot lead to refinement. Its end product is license."

Opera Star Swoons In Performance

LONDON (AP)—Anna Moffo, American opera singer, said Thursday an illness which caused her collapse on the Royal Opera House stage will force her to take an indefinite vacation.

Talking with newsmen at London Airport before boarding a Rome-bound plane for home with her husband, Mario Lanfranchi, Miss Moffo said: "I feel very tired and very weak. I am going home to Rome to see my regular doctor, then I will take a rest in San Moritz."

The brunette soprano collapsed during the second act of "Rigoletto" on Wednesday night.

"Before the performance I was suffering from an inflammation of the windpipe and had taken antibiotics," she said. "They had an adverse effect.

"My British doctor tells me I also have low blood pressure and that I must rest until it starts rising again."

Miss Moffo is a native of Philadelphia.

Peter Hurkos, 52, who claims powers of extra-seasory perception were used in a Boston police investigation last week, was arrested at a Manhattan Hotel this week on a charge of impersonating an FBI agent.

In the police investigation in Boston, police said Hurkos led them to a suspect now in custody in connection with the stranglings of 11 women. The description of the suspect by Hurkos was "uncannily close" police said.

But an FBI agent — he isn't.

The Lenten Story

BY WOODI ISHMAEL

THY FAITH HATH MADE THEE WHOLE

On His way out of Jericho en route to the triumphant entry into Jerusalem, Jesus worked one of His last miracles. He cured Bartimaeus, the blind beggar who sat by the roadside and began crying out when he heard Jesus of Nazareth was passing by.

The crowd tried to hush him, but Jesus called and asked him, "What wilt thou that I should do unto thee?"

The blind man said unto Him, "Lord, that I may see."

And Jesus said unto him, "Go thy way, thy faith hath made thee whole." And immediately he received his sight, and followed Jesus along the road. (Mark XI: 46-52)

$5,000 County Aid Sought For Sheltered Workshop

STROUDSBURG — A fund-raising delegation for the proposed Monroe County Sheltered Workshop yesterday asked the county commissioners for $5,000 to support the project.

The delegation consisted of Dr. John Abbruzzese, Jr., county school psychologist; Raymond Roberts of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, the organization pledged to raise money for the project, and Gerald Weinstein of the state Department of Public Welfare.

"This is the culmination of seven years planning," Dr. Abbruzzese told the commissioners. "We want to find a place for the mentally and physically handicapped in the county to work. Now, in the county, we have over 100 such people, many on the relief rolls.

"The sheltered workshop would employ these people, teach them a trade, and pay them for the work they do. The schools help these people, and we want to take over when the people graduate or leave school."

Dr. Abbruzzese said that probably most of the people employed would ultimately take their place in industry, but "for those so handicapped they can't leave, we would keep them working at the workshop.

Union's Backing

"The unions are with us," he said. "Jobs for our workers can be sublet from industry, consisting mainly of piece work."

Weinstein added that he has worked with these projects across the state. "The program was instituted in 1957, and there are now 25 workshops in operation. The state appropriates $240,000 per year for them.

"It really impresses me here," Weinstein said, "for the community organization is large and enthusiastic. I'm sure that whatever comes from this work toward the workshop will be a very sound plan in contrast with some other areas."

Weinstein said the workshop would be eligible for state aid, and estimated $6,000 per year as the kind of figure the workshop could expect.

Dr. Abbruzzese then said that "we have no building, we need a director at $8,000 per year, a shop foreman at about $5,000, and a clerk for $3,000. We have started with a figure of $30,000 to be raised locally to get the project going."

Roberts added that the Jaycees have talked with many organizations in the county and have received favorable comments. "Because of this, we are going to shoot for $50,000. This would include the $6,000 from the state."

Roberts said that if the commissioners could give $5,000 to the fund, it would be a great incentive for other organizations to give.

"After a while, when it's on its feet," Roberts said, "the workshop will be self-sufficient and will reduce the amount of money paid out on the relief rolls," he said.

Weinstein then said that Lebanon County has a working project of this type. "Luzerne also has a fine workshop, I understand," he said.

"The real purpose of the workshop is to get people to find their own worth as well as making a product," Weinstein said.

Target Date April 1

A target date of April 1 for collection of funds was announced, and acting solicitor Lester Brown suggested that the men submit a proposed budget for the coming year for the workshop along with a formal request for the money. He also said that Weinstein might submit accounts of such programs in other counties.

No further action was taken, pending the submission of the reports and budgets.

Commissioners Order Early County Planning Unit Meet

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County Commissioners yesterday said they will instruct the new acting chairman of the Monroe County Planning Commission, John Mills, to set up a meeting as soon as possible.

The commissioners said they would attend the meeting.

The board said that planning consultants should be chosen as soon as possible also, "but it is better to leave the choice of a consultant up to the planning commission."

"The planning commission could then make a recommendation to the compissioners," said Stanley B. Rader, chairman of the board.

The commissioners suggested courtroom number two in the courthouse as a possible place for the meetings, and said they would have steps taken to have it ready on meeting nights.

In other business, commissioner John Price said that the room for surplus food distribution on Bank Alley was rented by the previous commissioners, and that the food distribution center can't return to the courthouse now because of renovations going on in the basement. The lease runs until Dec. 12, 1964, Price said.

The commissioners decided to open the courthouse from 7 to 9 p.m. on Friday, March 6, and Monday, March 9, and from 1 to 4:30 p.m. on Saturday, March 7, to facilitate registration for the spring primary.

To Meet With Authority

The commissioners announced that they will meet with the Stroudsburg Municipal Authority at 7:30 p.m., Feb. 24, to discuss Stokes Mill reopening.

On a request by the New York Times that the commissioners take an advertisement in the upcoming Poconos supplement April 26, the commissioners said they would like to hear from the Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau, and the Eastern and Western Poconos Resort Associations on the possibility of their financing the ad.

The board voted to buy a new desk and an IBM electric typewriter for the Register and Recorder's office.

Carl Witherow and Charles Sincavage of the state Department of Highways in Allentown met with the board about flooding complaints on Tanite Road and Sweet Fern Road in Stroudsburg.

The board and the highway officials looked over both sites. It will write to the Stroud Township supervisors and the state Department of Forests and Waters about the possibility of making McMichaels Creek safer near Sweet Fern Road.

Robert L. Christman will notify the board of the action of Pocono Creek during high water times to determine if any action should be taken along Tanite Road.

Rev. Luther Markin told the board that it should consider hiring a man to direct the county home who is well versed in all aspects of public welfare and physical therapy. He said that such an administrator could have his duties enlarged to include all the welfare programs in the county.

"A man like that could save the county more than he costs it," Markin said.

Rinker, Kiefer and Rake, architects, sent the board copies of all contracts for work to be done enlarging the county home. Signed certification from contractors insuring the legal wage were included. The architects also said that civil defense work in the courthouse basement was 16 per cent completed.

Hire Nurse

The board hired Mrs. Kezia Zurd, R. N., 43, of Washington St., East Stroudsburg, as nurse for the county home at $80 per week. It also hired Mrs. Edward Metzgar, wife of the sheriff, as matron and part-time cook at the County Jail for $35 per week. She will cook twice weekly and replaces Mrs. Ada Albertson.

Two couples and a man applied for the position as director at the county home. The man is James Cadue, 55, of Tobyhanna, who gave his qualifications as an administrator.

The first couple to apply yesterday was Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hoffner of Hamilton Township. He's 46 and she's 43.

The second couple was Mr. and Mrs. Claude Motts, both 55, who have worked with food service for many years.

Barrett Stands By Light Plan

CANADENSIS — Barrett Township supervisors last night were not swerved from their original decision to budget street lights for 1964, although 63 people gathered to voice opinions.

Roger W. Lindsey, chairman of the supervisors, restated the board's original position that progress must be made and "if we look at it on the basis that it costs money, we'll never do anything."

Wayne Price presented the supervisors with a sheaf of papers he said, "was not a petition but rather a conveyance."

The papers contained signatures which requested the supervisors refrain installing lights. It was signed by more than 250 people. Price also suggested that if the supervisors declare their intentions, it would "clear a lot up."

Linsey painted out that the present board reorganized a month and a half ago, could not clarify a position, if the previous board had been unable to do so in more than eight months.

He then stated, "We will consider street lighting in the 1964 budget."

During discussion, it was pointed out that the number of 105 lights was based on a survey taken by Penna. Power and Light Co. The lights would cost the township nearly $5,000 per year and on an $8,000,000 assessment, a half-mill tax would carry the number of lights, it was pointed out.

This plan was originally suggested by the Barrett Community Club 10 months ago.

At the time the survey was viewed by supervisors it was pointed out that it was not a package deal. Lights could be purchased in a greater or lesser number according to the supervisors' decision.

In other business, the board approved payment of bills totalling $2,892.54; will investigate a request by the Barrett Twp. Volunteer Fire Co. to invest $2,000 which is earmarked for the purchase of a fire truck.

They also turned down a request from the planning commission that Harry Lee, attorney, be retained to handle planning commission business. The board said there was no need for a second solicitor. Elmer C. Christine, as township solicitor, will handle the business.

Soil Study Emphasized For Planning

EAST STROUDSBURG — Dr. Milford R. Heddleson, agronomist from Pennsylvania State University, was the principal speaker last night at Monroe County Community Planning Conference at East Stroudsburg State College.

His topic was "Soils as They Relate to all Land Use." He told the meeting that when planning is considered in any locality the contents of the soil should also be considered.

He pointed out the need for soil study. He said "Points to be studies are drainage, landscaping possibilities, whether the ground will support the building, and erosion problems."

Dr. Heddleson suggested five steps in planning. They are: get all the facts about the soil in the area, evaluate what you find, educate the people of the findings, get public approval of proposed plans, and start the plan.

Earlier in the program R. M. Hoot, a member of the conference, answered a question from a previous class.

Hoot said that a political subdivision with a planning and or zoning ordinance on its books can not be superseded by a county planning commission resolution or ordinance.

This was the answer to which ordinance takes precedence — county or political subdivision.

Groner: GOP Could Use Abe Today

STROUDSBURG — "Oh, what the Republican Party could do today if they could find a Lincoln."

Describing the odd mannerisms, character and wit of Abraham Lincoln, President of the United States from 1861 to 1865, Earl F. Groner, superintendent of Stroud Union School District, made that statement yesterday in a Lincoln Day address to the Stroudsburg Rotary Club.

Groner described Lincoln as a man with a long neck, long legs and big feet, who wore his clothes awkwardly and was often called a buffoon.

He spoke of Lincoln's "barnyard humor and fiery wit," and said Lincoln followed James Buchanan, only Pennsylvanian to reach the White House and "a miserable President."

Quotes Famous Passage

Groner quoted the famous passage from Lincoln's second inaugural address:

"With malice toward none; with charity for all; with firmness in the right. . .let us strive on to finish the work we are in; to bind up the nation's wounds; to care for him who shall have borne the battle, and for his widow and his orphan — to do all which may achieve a just and lasting peace, among ourselves and with all nations."

Then he said:

"If we could only take this part of Lincoln's philosophy and instill it in the minds of our friends and enemies, this would be a better place to live."

Groner was introduced to the club luncheon at the Penn-Stroud Hotel by Earl J. Slutter, program chairman, who said: "Lincoln built his values on homespun but eternal values.

"Our modern pattern seems to have deviated in this era to a paternalism and dependent point of view of too many citizens.

"Witness the civil rights invasion of privacy to earn a social gain — a short view on a long time hobbling of the human spirit."

Scouts Service At Temple

STROUDSBURG — Special services to honor scouting will be held tonight at 8 at the Temple Israel.

All scouts are invited to join the Temple in its observance of Scout Sabbath. Those who have begun work on their Ner Tamid award will be announced.

Services will be conducted by Rabbi Bernhard Presler who will speak on "The Torah and Scouting."

Following the services, scouts and guests will be invited to attend the "Oneg Shabbos," or reception. Scouts are urged to wear uniforms.

Saturday service will begin at 7:30 a.m., followed at 9 a.m. by the Bar and Bas Mitzvah class. The teen-age discussion group will meet in the Rabbi's study at 10a.m.

We can submit excellent plans for Special Structures or Mausoleums, grave covers or any "Custom Work" you may desire.

Bus Problems Perplex Board

EAST STROUDSBURG — The joint school board of the East Stroudsburg Area School District met last night in the high school and for one hour argued the problem of transporting the school's baseball team to and from the Day Street playground.

The board finally sent the problem — unresolved — to the transportation committee for further study.

Before the transportation problem the board discussed several instances of severe disciplinary problems in the school system.

The board limited debate on the matter to about 15 minutes.

It passed a resolution delegating the education committee authority to suspend or expel students for disobedience or misconduct. The committee will meet Feb. 26.

In other action, Carl Secor, read a letter from Lester Brown, principal of the East Stroudsburg State College's laboratory school, concerning a chronically incorrigible student.

Brown's letter detailed school trouble the 13-year-old student has been in this year.

Dr. Evan Reese, a board member, suggested a psychiatrist examine the boy and report to the education committee.

The student is now suspended from the laboratory school.

The board discussed briefly a high school student also under suspension for disciplinary reasons, two boys who recently went on a painting spree in East Stroudsburg and an incident involving slashing automobile tires in the borough.

Harold T. Hamlen, a school director from Smithfield Township, said, "Anyone who can spell 'retards' (one of the words spelled in paint by the two boys) should have their names in the paper and we should all know who they are.

"We have too much mollycoddling around here."

Pike Resident GOP Aspirant For Congress

MILFORD — Leo W. (Mac) McCormick, a resident of Pike County, has announced he is a Republican candidate for U. S. representative from the 15th Congressional District, comprising Monroe, Pike, Carbon and Northampton Counties.

The office is held by U. S. Rep. Fred B. Rooney, a Bethlehem Democrat, who seeks re-election.

The new candidate is 62. His post office address is South Sterling, which is in Wayne County. He lives just across the line in Pike.

McCormick is a manufacturer's representative, acting for independent manufacturers in sales matters. A native of Schuylkill County, he spent most of his adult life in Washington, D. C. He has lived in Pike County about six years.

Until 1934, he was confidential secretary to the late William S. Vare, congressman and senator from Philadelphia. He was a member of the Republican National Committee in 1928. He was an adviser to the late Sen. James Davis for a time. If nominated, he said he plans an active campaign.

So far, one other Republican has indicated he might run for the office. Neil Carothers III, of Bethlehem and Washington, D. C., announced at a Republican meeting recently that he would run if given organization support.

Driver Gone From Wreck

STROUDSBURG — A small red and white truck overturned last night on Interstate 80 near the Broad St. exit in Stroudsburg. It was heading east.

Stroudsburg police said that they could not find the driver, but the truck belonged to Norman Van Horn Jr., 94 N. Courtland St., East Stroudsburg.

Stroudsburg police received a call from the control center to investigate the accident at about 10:30 p.m. and found the truck on its side near the edge of the road.

Control center said a passing motorist saw the wreck and stopped at police headquarters in Stroudsburg to report the accident.

Strickland's Wins Case

STROUDSBURG — Strickland's Mountain Inn and Cottages at Swiftwater was found not liable yesterday in a trespass suit brought by a New York City woman.

A jury of seven women and five men deliberated after dark last night and returned the verdict for the defendant. The suit alleged that Mrs. Frannie Mandee incurred injuries when she slipped and fell on a bathmat at Strickland's July 29, 1959.

The law firm of Robinson and Hoffner represented the defendant and Maxwell H. Cohen represented the plaintiff.

The trial took three days, with Judge Fred W. Davis presiding.

S-burg Moves To Enforce Fire Prevention Ordinance

STROUDSBURG — Borough officials this week moved to enforce the fire prevention ordinance which requires a permit for special burning.

Officials instructed Nelson Lightner Jr., borough fire chief, to carry out the provisions and regulations of the ordinance and issue courtesy tags to persons not complying with the new ruling.

A file of first offenders will be put on record and when the second violation is recorded the borough will take action.

There are eight violations indicated on the "courtesy tag." If the individual receives a tag, it does not mean he has to appear in court on the first offense. It is a warning from the fire department which is trying to make Stroudsburg a better and safer community in which to live.

Persons or industries desiring a special open burning permit may obtain one by applying to the office of the borough manager at the municipal building.

The application states an applicant will agree to assume all liability for any damage that might result by reason of the burning. It also notes that one must agree to provide supervision during the burning period, and the fire must be contained in an approved fire container located safely and at least 15 feet from any structure.

It also urges that no fire or rubbish shall be burned Monday and Thursday at any time, or any other day of the week except between the hours of 3 p.m. and 9 p.m.

Also the fire chief may prohibit any or all bonfires and outdoor rubbish fires when atmospheric conditions or local circumstances make such fires hazardous.

Chief Lightner said, "The fire department has worked for this ordinance for the past five years and it is badly needed for the safety and protection of the community against fire."

He also said, "The acceptance of the ordinance has been brought about because of carelessness on some peoples part."

He noted that several communities throughout the U.S. have adopted a similar plan backed by the National Fire Protection Association.

Settlement Made In Libel Suit

SCRANTON — Judgment for the defendent notwithstanding, Howell T. Whiting of Mt. Pocono collected $1,500 plus costs in his trespass suit against the Scranton Times as a result of a stipulation entered into by opposing counsel.

The defense counsel, J. Julius Levy, dropped his appeal of the suit before the case was completed before Judge Otto P. Robinson, who presided.

Edwin Krawitz, Stroudsburg, and Paul H. Price of Lackawanna County, were counsel for the plaintiff.

After the appeal was dropped, the judge signed a court order formally entering judgment in favor of the defendent, but awarding the verdict of $1,500 plus costs to the plaintiff.

Won Jury Trial

Whiting had won his jury trial March 30, 1963 against the Scranton Times for damage to his reputation. He alleged that the Times had libelled him on April 5, 1961, when it reported that he had pleaded guilty in Federal Court to an indictment charging him with stealing government property at the Tobyhanna Army Depot.

The Times later said that Whiting had pleaded innocent. He was subsequently acquitted, and entered the libel suit against the newspaper.

A Jury's Responsibility

The right and the duty to vote and to serve on juries in civil and criminal trials are two of the most vital public responsibilities of every citizen in this democracy.

Much is said about the need to register and vote but little public attention is paid to the need for citizens to serve on juries.

Too many busy men and women ask to be excused because they have "more important" private business. It is an excuse which should not be given nor accepted unless there is a real emergency.

The unwillingness of many people to serve on juries is part of the reason for sometimes irresponsible jury verdicts.

A Monroe County Court jury delivered what we believe to be an irresponsible verdict this week in a case involving a man who admitted, under oath, that he had lied earlier to an investigating State Policeman.

The defendant in a hit and run criminal case admitted he had not told the truth when he insisted to a State Policeman that he had not hit a certain car, nor left the scene of the accident, nor even driven his car away from his house on the day of the accident.

On the witness stand, under oath, the defendant then testified that he did hit the car, but had stopped several hundred yards later and so had not left the scene of the accident.

Convincing testimony was given by the couple whose car was hit. They did not know the defendant. They said he hit their car, drove off and escaped them after a chase.

Faced with this evidence and these witnesses, the jury came to the surprising verdict that the defendant was not guilty of a hit and run violation and that the defendant and the investigating State Policeman should share the court costs of the trial!

It is difficult to understand how a jury could decide that a State Policeman who was the victim of an admitted lie by the defendant should pay half the $139.75 cost of the defendant's trial.

We congratulate Monroe County Judge Fred W. Davis for setting aside the jury's verdict and for stating publicly that he found ample evidence for finding the defendant guilty.

One of the tests jurors are supposed to apply to evidence given in court is the capability of a witness. A defendant who admits that he lied once should lose some degree of credibility.

There seem to be more and more jurists in Monroe County and across the nation—this is not a local problem—who are unwilling to make unpopular decisions and are too willing to ignore the facts, the testimony and the law because of sympathy for a defendant or antagonism towards the plaintiff or prosecutor, or personal prejudice of some kind.

A good judge can guide the administration of justice in his court, but the ultimate decision of guilt or innocence is made by the jury. Our system of justice rests strongly on the intelligence and courage of citizens who serve on juries.

Comment Of The Day

"I stand with the jobless Pennsylvanians who this week received unemployment checks too meager to meet the basic needs of their families.

"I stand with the thousands of young Pennsylvanians who will soon complete school but won't be able to find jobs in this state.

"I stand with the men who've been thrown out of work by automation or economic change and who need retraining if they are ever to work again.

"I stand with the men who can't get jobs in plants that never came here because other states have sound unemployment compensation funds and we do not.

"And finally I stand with the men and women who are working today, but who might be unemployed tomorrow, and who won't be able to collect unemployment checks from a bankrupt fund."

'Now What Else Can I Do To Make Americans Mad'

Walter Lippmann

Not Red

By Walter Lippmann

Last week, in an article about Southeast Asia, I referred to Finland, and in two sloppily-written sentences I seemed to be describing Finland as a country which was or has been a Communist satellite.

I did not mean to say that. For I know perfectly well that Finland is a Liberal Democratic society, neutral in its foreign relations and autonomous in its internal affairs.

The point of bringing Finland into a discussion of Southeast Asia was to point out that a country on the border of a big Communist state need not inevitably lose its national independence. I was talking about what might possibly happen in North Vietnam, which is, as Finland is to Russia, the next-door neighbor of Red China.

The independence of Finland is not absolute; Finland, for example, may not join NATO. Finland, nonetheless, is democratically governed and maintains the civil liberties of a free society. I think it important not to close our minds to the idea that North Vietnam might be induced to adopt a position of neutrality which was accepted by Peking as Finland's neutrality is accepted by Moscow.

Finland, we must remember, had been for the century before the first world war a part of the Russian empire; the Czar of Russia was the grand duke of Finland. In the second world war Finland was defeated by the Soviet army. That Finland has nevertheless been able to achieve as much national independence as she enjoys is worth thinking about when we study the problem of Southeast Asia.

The view which I expressed in my article last week was that the political miracle of Finland was possible because of her physical contact with the non - Communist world through her relations with Sweden. The possibility of some kind of similar contact exists in Southeast Asia because Hanoi, the capital of North Vietnam, is a seaport. This possibility is reinforced by the historic Vietnamese fears of China.

There are, I submit, compelling reasons why we must open our minds to the possibilities of a political solution in Southeast Asia. The civil war in South Vietnam is going badly for our side -- more badly than the American public has been allowed to know, more badly than Secretary Rusk's recent remarks would lead one to think. I was, I must admit, startled the other day at being told in official quarters that if we fail in the attempt to win the war, as we might, we would be defeated and would have to withdraw our troops.

The current policy of the United States -- in which the alternatives are military victory or military defeat -- is catastrophic. I consider this a policy which combines a reckless gamble with defeatism. I do not think that we should consider withdrawing our troops until a tolerable solution has been worked out for Southeast Asia.

We should stay there with our forces in order to retain the leverage and the bargaining power for a diplomatic settlement with North Vietnam and Red China. The real problem is how to negotiate a political settlement before the situation deteriorates, as it is now deteriorating, into a military defeat.

The American public is being told what officially we hope will happen. It is not being told what in fact is happening.

It would be a very big mistake for the administration to continue to limit itself, as it is now doing, to a choice between what is almost certainly an unattainable vicory and an unacceptable catastrophe.

The State Department will be negligent if it does not develop plans for the use of our bargaining power in Southeast Asia, which is now still very great. If it should become apparent that military victory is unattainable, we shall sorely need such plans.

The true policy is that of the middle road, to bargain diplomatically about the neutralization of Southeast Asia in relation to the nature of the American military and economic presence on the Asian mainland.

The Pennsylvania Story

Stage-Like Appearance

By Mason Denison

HARRISBURG — Reporter's Notebook:

Production A La Scranton — When Governor Scranton appeared before a joint House-Senate session this week to convene Pennsylvania's Legislature in special session, in some respects it seemed more like a stage production than a gubernatorial appearance.

For the most part this was due to the presence of television cameras with their usual bevy of cluttering lights, wires, technicians, producers, cameramen and the like.

In essence it was quite a production and it can hardly be denied that Mr. Scranton with his standard aplomb, poise and ease proved again to be an excellent leading character in the scene that unfolded for the TV cameras in the ornate chamber of the House of Representatives.

As for effectiveness, the Governor generally was conceded to have been at his best in delivering his special session message when he struck his base point: the need for revising Pennsylvania's unemployment compensation program . . . His delivery was hard-hitting; his choice of impacting words and phrases excellent . . . In a nutshell he made his point well, forcefully and with somewhat brittle impact.

Opposition Democrats privately were nettled — not so much perhaps by what the Governor had to say, as the manner in which he presented himself . . . "Doggone that guy, he's got the best political image on that boob tube of anyone," growled one Democratic lawmaker. "If they run him for the presidency, we'll more than have our hands full. All he has to do, it seems, is get up in front of a bunch of people and — pffft, that's it! In fact for a moment there he almost had me snowed!"

Facial makeup for the TV cameras? . . . Mr. Scranton doesn't use the stuff . . . A close shave and then standard after-shave powder — and that's it.

No More "Number Please" —The first of the month will see a rather interesting change in the telephone set-up on Pennsylvania's Capitol Hill as the ancient Capitol telephone exchange switches to Bell Telephone's new Centrex system of direct dialing to Capitol Hill offices.

No longer will the "number please" voice of the Capitol switchboard operator be heard (actually, the operators answered "Capitol" to all incoming calls) as the 22 operators (Bell employes incidentally, not state employes) leave the 16-position switchboard to the advance of automation and electronics . .. It will be the first time since 1912 that there will be no operators answering the switchboard (other than the routine info operators, etc . . .)

An average of 15,000 calls a day go through the Capitol switchboard, which after February 29 will be handled by Bell's direct dialing set-up embodied in Centrex . . . How will calls go through without operators? . . . You'll dial 787 — and then follow with the four-digit Capitol extension number . . . What if you don't know the extension number of the particular office you want to call? . . . Dial 787-2121 and ask the operator that answers . . . It's that simple — and you can dial direct from any area of the nation having direct dialing!

Alright Kids, Cut It Out! — This in effect could be termed the essence of an inter-departmental memo sent to department heads on Capitol Hill recently by Secretary of Property and Supplies Richard M. Hornbeck, whose department is responsible for state-owned physical properties.

Keeper-of-the - brooms Hornbeck had in mind specifically two new and expensive elevators installed in the Main Capitol Building and the North Office Building when he said in his memo:

"I would like to take this opportunity to solicit your help in maintaining the present appearance of the new elevators. In the past many of the elevators have been deliberately defaced, marred and scarred by pencil markings, knife scratches, and indecent drawings."

A modest kudo to P&S chief Hornbeck for at least trying to curtail a moronic practice that seems to have become all too prevalent in recent years where public property is concerned . . . At first blush it may seem like somewhat of an innocuous memo to send to department heads — but on the other hand it does have a sound point that could be driven home everywhere!

Assembly Candidates

Republicans and Democrats are beating the bushes for candidates for assemblyman.

Chairmen of the two major parties in Monroe County would like to see open races in the primary election to give an insight on what to expect in the November general election.

Harold Kresge, chairman of the Republican party, advocates "the more the merrier" attitude in primary runoffs. The same is true of W.C.G. (Bud) Peterson, head of Monroe's Democrats.

At the present time the only aspirants for the office are Van. D. Yetter of Marshalls Creek, the incumbent, and Jack Ferrebee of East Stroudsburg. Yetter is a Democrat and Ferrebee carries the GOP label.

Should be a lot of talk about winning football at the Bill Schoonover testimonial at the Penn-Stroud Hotel, Stroudsburg, March 4.

Heading the cast will be Jim Ringo, all-pro center for the Green Bay Packers, a National Football League victor more times than not.

Another sidedish at the fete for the former Stroud Union football star will be Floyd (Ben) Schwartzwalder, maker of winning elevens at Syracuse University.

Besides Ringo and Schwartzwalder, John Whitehead Schoonover's former coach at Stroud Union, will be present. Whitehead had miraculous success at Middletown (NY) High, (copping three league championships) and Carlisle where he led the middle Pennsylvania school to a great campaign last fall.

Put it down in your notebook that Tocks Island will be a reality by 1965. That is sometime in '65 the project which embraces a 37 - mile area above Shawnee will be under construction.

The rest of '64 will reveal the groundwork for the biggest federal project ever to hit the area. Probably by 1967, the dam will be completed. This is five years ahead of schedule.

The young wife had just given birth to her first baby. A nurse came out to pass along the good news to the anxious husband.

"What did you want," she asked, "a boy or a girl?"

"A boy," answered the father.

"I'm not too disappointed," said the father philosophically. "A girl was my second choice."

The Allen-Scott Report

Burton Blasted

Paul Scott

WASHINGTON — The highly thorny problem of what to do about the increasingly explosive clamor for revocation of the visa granted British actor Richard Burton is now in the hands of two key Cabinet members.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Attorney General Robert Kennedy have been directed by the White House to come up with an answer to this disturbing bombshell — which is flooding both Congress and the White House with the heaviest deluge of mail in months.

This backstage Cabinet "crisis" was precipitated by letters sent Rusk and Kennedy by the House Judiciary Subcommittee on Immigration, headed by Representative Michael Feighan, D - O., demanding revocation of Burton's visa.

Copies of these forceful letters also were sent to President Johnson. He lost no time in letting Rusk and Kennedy know he wanted speedy action.

What they will do remains to be seen. They have been exchanging views by phone, and assistants have been poring over statutes and precedents. They have also received reports on the heavy mail reaction.

Rusk also has asked for a compilation on Burton and his still - married "fiancee" Liz Taylor.

At Rusk's orders, Abba Schwartz, chief of the Bureau of Consular & Security Affairs, cabled U.S. officials in London, Paris, Rome, Mexico and Canada for all information in their files concerning the couple and their activities.

Further, at direct White House behest, Rusk set up a "review board to consider Burton's visa. Its decision is to be promptly conveyed to the White House.

There are two reasons behind the President's concern:

One is the unmistakable evidence of widespread indignation at the granting of a visa to Burton. This was done while he was in Mexico recently filming a movie. The visa is for six months, to enable him to appear in "Hamlet" in Boston in mid - March and then in New York. The White House clearly does not want to be embarrassed by this queasy affair.

The other reason is that Representative Feighan, in the forefront of the demand for cancelling of the visa, also is chairman of the Joint Congressional Committee on Immigration that has jurisdiction over the administration's bill for extensive revision of the immigration laws. In this capacity, the Ohioan is in a strategic position to determine the fate of the far - reaching legislation.

Throwing The Book at Him — Feighan is leaving no doubt he is firmly bent on forcing a showdown on Burton's visa.

In addition to the blunt letters to Secretary Rusk and Attorney General Kennedy, Feighan has requested the State Department to supply his subcommittee with a full transcript of Mrs. Burton's divorce proceedings against the actor. This record is to be made a part of the committee's hearings.

In the letter to Rusk, Feighan stressed that under the law it is squarely up to the State Department to decide what should be done about Burton's visa.

"There is no question, in my opinion," wrote Feighan, "about the Department of State having the exclusive authority by law to revoke the visa issued to Richard Burton . . .Congress intended that the basic question of eligibility to receive a visa be sharply separated from any and all involvement with the question of admissibility after a visa was granted and the visa holder presented himself at a port or point of entry into the United States."

Feighan also sharply reminded Rusk that other matters besides law are involved in this case, foremost among them "the moral tone of our nation."

"It is, I believe," said Feighan, "generally conceded that the break - up of families and the public glorification of crime and immorality are major contributing causes to the staggering increase of crime and delinquency in the United States. When these two causative factors are dominant in a single case, and when all the sordid details of that case are propagated through mass media, the end results are painfully evident. One cannot escape the conclusion that the constant flaunting of immoral behavior by widely publicized public figures creates in the minds of many of the false concept that immorality is a public virtue.

Dear Abby

Simply Mystified

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow with two grown children. For almost two years I went with a widower. We got along very well and seemed made for each other. He asked me to marry him and I said yes. Then all of a sudden, just before the holidays, he said he needed more time to think things over. He said he wanted the approval of his two older sisters, and he also wanted to talk it over with his deceased wife at her graveside in another town. I haven't heard from him since. Aside from the hurt and humiliation I have suffered, I can't help wondering what happened at his wife's grave. Or do you think he was just trying to find an escape because he changed his mind about marrying me? Can you offer an explanation to ease my torment?

TROUBLED

DEAR TROUBLED: His sisters probably turned thumbs down. What the graveside consultation turned up only the mystic widower knows. Who knows — perhaps you are the lucky one.

DEAR ABBY: I sizzled when I read that letter from "GOOD NEIGHBOR" who found two little tots playing inside an old refrigerator he had stored in his garage. He said he scolded them and explained how dangerous it was, and then he gave them each a good swat on the behind so they'd remember it. Then he got a call from their mother telling him it was against the law to lay hands on someone else's child, and he'd be hearing from her lawyer! If I had been that mother I would have baked that man a beautiful apple pie and presented it to him with my own thanks. And then I'd have paddled my kids soundly for going onto other people's property.

ANOTHER MOTHER

DEAR ABBY: How stupid can one be? When that "Good Neighbor" found the two little neighbor children playing in the old ice box he had stored in his garage, he should have been told that if he had turned the ice box with the door up against the wall he wouldn't have to worry about anybody crawling into it and suffocating to death.

SAN DIEGO DOCTOR

DEAR ABBY: We have our old refrigerator out in the garage, but it will never be a death trap for little children, or pets who chance to wander into the garage and find it a cozy place to curl up. You see, we have taken the door off!

Speaking Of Your Health:

Safe Surgery For Aged

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Life above 65 in America is readily accepted today as being usual rather then uncommon.

The achievements of modern medicine and science have, in the past 50 years, added 15 to 18 years to the normal life expectancy. Antibiotics have sustained life by overcoming severe pneumonia, meningitis and many overwhelming infections that threaten man's life.

Diagnostic and surgical techniques, and preventive medicine have contributed to the early recognition and treatment of devitalizing diseases.

Because of the increasing life span, the medical specialty of geriatrics has become of great interest to physicians everywhere. Geriatrics is the study of health problems of the elderly. Ever - increasing attention is being concentrated on the medical and social welfare of the aged.

Special Anesthesia Methods

There was a time, not many decades ago, when physicians and surgeons were extremely limited when a surgical procedure was necessary for the aged, and the hazards were great.

Today, our resources, which include intense knowledge of the physiology of the elderly, allow surgeons to approach their procedures with relatively little additional risk.

Special anesthesia methods now have additional safety factors that reduce the hazards of surgery in the elderly.

Surgeons and physicians are sympathetic and aware of the special needs of this vast group of patients. They make provision for special nursing care after surgery in an effort to get patients out of bed as quickly as possible to avoid complications.

Diseases of the circulatory system head the group of illnesses that the elderly are heir to. New methods of study of the function of the heart, blood pressure variations, respiratory capacity and the state of the liver and kidneys add vital information for the minimizing of any danger during surgery.

The emotional needs of the elderly are not unlike those of all other age groups, but there are additional emotional problems characteristic of the aged.

Problems Of Elderly

Many of the elderly have been displaced or retired from jobs, and, in many instances, from society. Their security is at a minimum financially and psychologically. Illnesses serve only to emphasize their aloneness and their dislocation from friends and family.

Social service workers and psychologists combine their talents in giving emotional support to the elderly during their stay in a hospital, particularly before an operation.

The aging, the elderly and the aged are a privileged group of human beings, privileged to have survived the rigors that beset mankind throughout a lifetime of illness and hazards.

Special Privilege

That privilege becomes a special one because of the newer dedication of social scientists, physicians and surgeons to their singular problems.

The great strides in longevity are being continued by the techniques of preserving the elderly in health and in social dignity.

Stories Behind Words

by William S. Penfield

Slave

The Slavs originally lived north of the Carpathian Mountains in northeastern Europe. They started moving south and west into other areas of Europe. This spreading out weakened them militarily and left them open to conquest.

Eventually the Slavs were conquered and vast numbers were sold into bondage over most of Europe.

Thus the name Slav, or Sclavus in Latin, became a synonym for a person held in bondage.

The word took several forms in German — sklave, Sclav and sclave. It entered English as sclave. Later the "c" was dropped, giving us the word "slave."

It Could Tear Your Family Apart

What could separate you from your family?

This may surprise you, but the answer is Pennsylvania's Unemployment Compensation Law. Right now the Unemployment Compensation Fund is in bad financial shape. A sudden recession—with a lot of people thrown out of work—and the Fund would be broke, busted, bankrupt.

There'd be no unemployment payments for you. What's even worse, no new job, either. Industry (and new jobs) don't come to states with bankrupt Unemployment Compensation Funds.

You might have to leave Pennsylvania to find work.

At first you wouldn't be able to take your family along, would you? Kids in school. A house (with a mortgage) to sell. Problems finding a decent place to live near your new job. It might be quite a while before the family got together again.

Why is the Unemployment Compensation Fund in such bad financial shape? Too many people—who are not honest-to-goodness workers like yourself—have been milking it dry. Draining it way past the danger point.

Why doesn't somebody do something about it? Somebody is—a Special Session of the State Legislature is now considering amendments that can save your unemployment payments, and your job.

The Jobs For Pennsylvanians Committee (the people who are paying for this ad) urges you to back these amendments. These needed changes in the law will protect the jobs of people like you who want to work. Will make sure that there's enough money in the Fund to pay you benefits if you're temporarily out of work. And will even raise the maximum weekly unemployment payment by 12½%.

These amendments will put the Fund back on its feet again. The Unemployment Compensation tax your boss pays will be increased. (Remember, you don't pay any Unemployment Compensation tax—only your employer does.) Millions of dollars will be saved by closing all the loopholes. Only bona fide workers like yourself—when temporarily unemployed—will be able to get benefits.

And, don't forget, your maximum weekly benefits will be raised by 12½%.

But, most important of all, these amendments will bring new jobs to Pennsylvania. And keep jobs already in Pennsylvania from leaving.

Think about it. Talk up these amendments to your friends and fellow workers. Make sure they understand how important it is that these amendments to the Unemployment Compensation Law are passed. JOBS FOR PENNSYLVANIANS COMMITTEE, Robert G. MacAlister, Secretary

House Of The Week—Modest One-Story Expands With Ease

Houses which offer absolutely no opportunity to expand are, unfortunately, as commonplace as they are exasperating.

Almost as frustrating are houses that do permit expansion -- a garage that can be converted or a backyard that can be usurped for an addition -- but to gain the needed sleeping room you have to sacrifice some of the valuable daily living space.

What is truly rare, in fact almost impossible to find, is a home such as today's House of the Week which presents a variety of built-in expansion opportunities so that the often unpredictable needs of the future can be met as they come up, and solved in the most efficient and economical way possible.

This is true of today's house whether the needs are for a great amount of extra space, a small amount, or something in between.

The house basically is a one-story, three-bedroom dwelling with an unpretentious colonial exterior and an interesting L-shaped floor plan. It was designed by architect Herman H. York.

Its basic area is only 1,511 square feet, but its attic contains an additional 670 square feet which can be finished off into an additional two bedrooms and a third full bath — and the work can be done piecemeal, as the new space is required.

Though this sort of vertical expansion is the least expensive (because the structure already is in place) there is another expansion possibility which doesn't interfere with the convenience of one-level living.

An additional room can be added off the kitchen; again, not until the space is needed or wanted. Meanwhile, if desired, the area can be put to use as a breezeway or screened porch between the house and garage, though even the garage doesn't have to be built until finances permit.

In short, this is an extremely versatile house which can be tailored to the owner's needs whenever they arise or however they might change over the years.

ADDITIONAL DETAILS

A central foyer leads from the covered porch entry to all principle rooms. It contains not only a large coat closet but also a cleaning closet right at the hub of the house.

A dramatic corner fireplace in the living room dominates the view from the foyer and also provides a comfortable homey touch in the living room.

Another fine feature in this 15' by 19' room is the bow window and its window seat.

The dining room is nicely located as an extension of the formal entertaining area when large gatherings require it. A handsome floor-to-ceiling divider keeps the two rooms separated visually, but allows them to flow together.

The kitchen with its open corner dinette gives a commanding view of the backyard play area. An added attraction in this important room is the large pantry.

Surely one of the most appreciated features to a housewife is the self contained laundry with a mud closet at the back door. There is plenty of room for washer, dryer, ironing board and storage shelves.

All three bedrooms are nicely sized and have natural sound buffers formed by closets. The most interesting feature in the sleeping wing, however, is the arrangement of bathrooms.

As in most of York's homes, the plumbing has been grouped for economical installation, and in this one the "second" bath has an additional door opening to the laundry area, allowing it to perform maximum service.

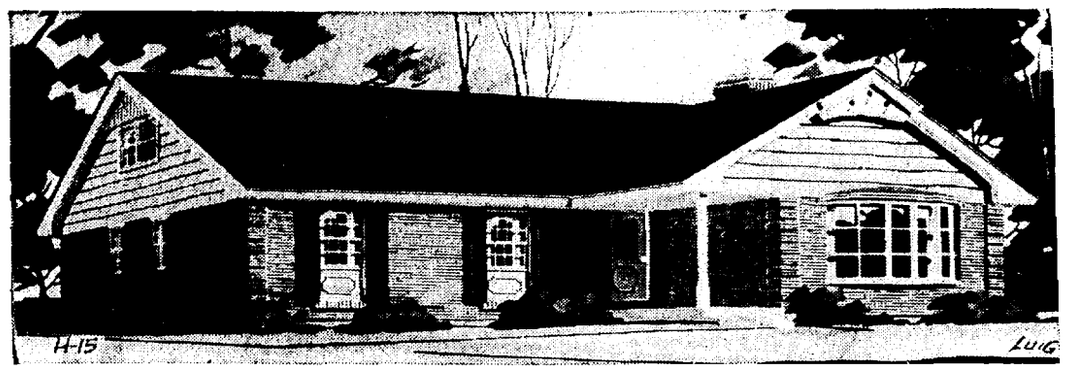
The upstairs offers not only expansion space for additional bedrooms but also a large amount of easily accessible storage space. Double windows on each side plus windows in the rear corner assure plenty of ventilation.

The exterior calls for brick veneer on all sides, and to add interest York has designed brick "quoins" at the corners. "This is a device used in colonial design to create an appearance of added strength," York explains. "It makes the home more attractive and more formal."

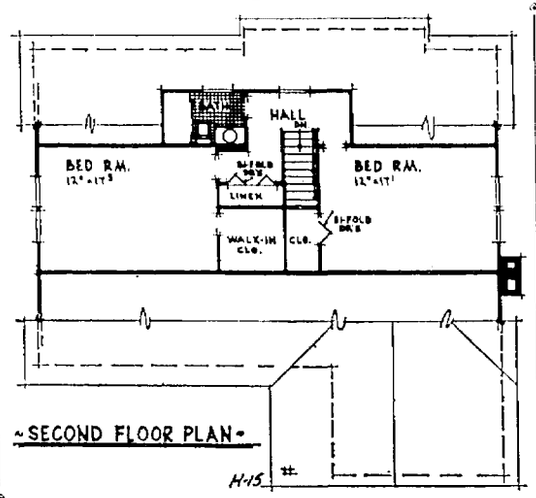
Rough sawn pine boards make up other vertical surfaces, and wood panels add luxury under the front windows. York suggests the panels should be painted the same color as the window trim and door.

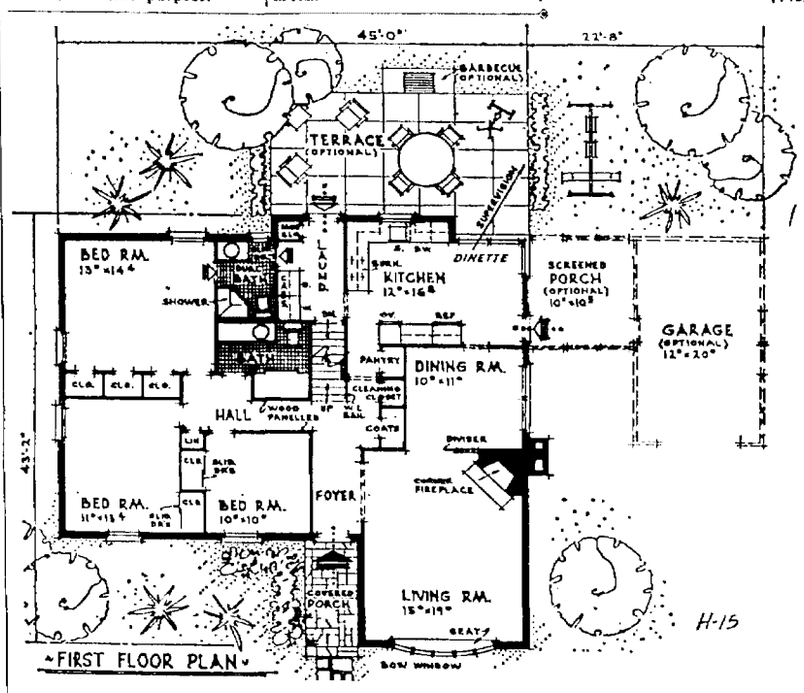
H-15 STATISTICS

A one-story home with a basic living area of 1,511 square feet. The second floor expansion adds 670 square feet. Covered porch adds 54 square feet. Over-all dimensions are 45' by 43'2"; for porch and garage add 22'8".



EXPANDABLE ONE-STORY—Basically this is a one-story home with three bedrooms, two baths and 1,511 square feet of living area. But there is built-in expansion room for two more bedrooms upstairs, and a third downstairs if needed.





FLOOR PLANS— The garage and screened porch (which can become an enclosed room) are optional features which can be added later. The upstairs also can be expanded piecemeal as the space is needed.

How To Save Heating Dollars

Any homeowner can save five per cent or more on his fuel bills each year if he properly controls his heating system, says the Plumbing - Heating - Cooling Information Bureau.

A substantial saving on fuel bills can be made by lowering the thermostat about six degrees below normal when nobody is home or when everyone has gone to bed. This rule does not apply, however, when it is zero or below because the heating system will have to work too hard to re-heat the house.

Double Duty For Boiler

Indirect water heaters in connection with automatically fired hot water and steam heating systems are fully able to meet the growing demand for hot water in homes, says the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau.

With an indirect water heating system, the same boiler that heats the home also supplies heat for the domestic water supply to the tub, shower, lavatories, sinks, automatic laundry and dishwasher.

Brighten Them Up

Those favorite small wooden toys which are beginning to look a little bedraggled can be brightened up with a fresh coat of color, says the National Paint, Varnish and Lacquer Association. Make any necessary repairs and sand any rough spots. Then apply a quality interior enamel. By the way, an artists's brush is often the most convinent type of use on small areas.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Question: I recently purchased a large quantity of sand for use in a concrete project I have in mind. A neighbor took a look at the sand and said he thinks it contains too much silt, which I understand is a mineral soil deposit. He said that the concrete won't come out right if I make it with this sand.

I am willing to forget about using the sand for the concrete, since I have another use for it. But how do I know whether the sand has too much silt and how can I determine whether the next batch I buy will be the same?

Answer: Your neighbor is correct about the effect of making concrete with sand containing too much silt. Here is a simple test that will determine whether there is an excessive amount of silt, which is present to some degree in all sand. Pour about two inches of the sand into a small, clean, dry jar. Then add clear water to a point close to the top of the jar. Shake the jar vigorously for a couple of minutes, then set it down. The silt will go to the top, leaving the rest of the water perfectly clear. If the layer of silt is more than one-eighth of an inch in depth, the sand has too much silt and is not suitable for making concrete.

If you purchased the sand from a dealer who knew that it was to be used in a concrete mix, he should be willing to exchange it for the right kind. The presence of foreign materials in sand weakens the concrete mix and is one reason why ordinary beach sand is not suitable for this purpose.

Modern Trends In Designs

Modern trends in boiler design make it possible to put the boiler for the hydronic heating system in any convenient place, says the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau.

The latest type of boiler is extremely compact. A boiler large enough to heat a six-room house is hardly larger than a television set and may be easily installed in a kitchen, utility room, garage, closet or attic.

WATER CLOSETS

Water closet operating designs are labeled 'wash-down,' 'reverse trap,' or 'siphon-jet.'

The siphon-jet is the best basic type of water closet, says the Plumbing - Heating-Cooling Information Bureau. It has a large water area in the bowl, and sure and quiet flushing action. The reverse trap is very good and commonly used. The wash-down type should be avoided in residential use. It is noisy, clogs easily and is hard to clean.

PAINT BRUSH BUYERS

WHEN purchasing a paint brush, look for a solid strip in the heel of the brush, says the National Paint, Varnish and Lacquer Association. This strip plays three major roles in the performance and durability of the brush. It keeps the bristles in shape, it helps the brush to carry its paint load, and it makes for easier cleaning.

How To Replace Faucet Aerators

The faucets on most modern plumbing fixtures come equipped with aerators. An aerator on the end of the spout mixes air with water to provide a soft flow.

But like all filters, aerators become clogged after prolonged use and water may flow unevenly.

To remedy this problem, says the Plumbing - Heating-Cooling Information Bureau, simply unscrew the aerator and clean the strainer with a bristle brush or fine needle.

If the device is severly clogged or if it is damaged, a replacement is called for. It's a good idea to replace an old one with a swivel type. This permits the flow of water to be directed to any part of the sink or lavatory.

If the old aerator is so tightly screwed on that a wrench must be used, a simple precaution can be taken to protect the chrome finish of the fitting. The Bureau suggests covering the teeth of the wrench, or the fitting itself, with adhesive tape. If no tape is available, put a cloth between the wrench and the fitting. At any rate, do not allow the bare metal of the wrench to come in contact with the fitting surface.

Some Color Do's and Don'ts

Knowing a few basic facts about color and how to use it can give you a head start in planning a color scheme for one room or a whole house, says, the National Paint, Varnish and Lacquer Association. DO mix both warm and cool colors in each room. DON'T use colors in equal proportions in any one room. DO remember that colors are relative and must be seen together. DON'T use too many colors in a room, and don't use all neutral hues. DO study color swatches in both daylight and nightlight as colors often change under artifical light. DO have continuing color flow through the house, and use harmonious colors in rooms that adjoin. DONT choose neutral negative colors just because they are safe. DO remember that color in a large area looks "more so". Your color sample should always be lighter than the final results that you intend.

Paneled Room Gives New Identity

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The average room in new homes and apartments resembles a shoe box, lacking architectural details to make it interesting, says designed Douglass Semonin, who put an award-winning paneled room on paper.

One of 20 winning designs selected by the American Institute of Interior Designers, it can give a room new identity.

"The idea is to enable decorators to change the architecture of a room to some extent, giving the illusion of architectural interest with wallpaper. Everyone is interested in new architectural developments betcause they are necessary in giving a room distinctive quality," he says.

The paper panels were designed to achieve a series of panels that would be as useful as possible over the largest variety of sizes, he says. From a selection of sizes, the panels should be able to fit into any room.

This involved quite a few technical problems, Semonin says, but he finally hit on something that "was reasonably simple."

The paper walls come in a three-part plan — a background paper in plain woodgrain; cane panels which can be used with it in a choice of sizes — 18 or 28 inch widths and 6 feet in height; a dado that is 28 inches high. The same dado molding is used inverted at the ceiling.

The woodgrain paper looks like random-width aged oak. Besides a natural look it is available in a variety of colors including red and blue. The aim was to achieve the look of old paneling that had been painted and antiqued, says Semonin.

Cane panels have a darker value behind caning to give greater depth to side walls. Though the cane panels are basically Louis XVI design, they may be used with any furniture because the design has been simplified.

Where Isn't A Finish?

Did you ever think about the multitude of articles in your everyday life that are made brighter and more durable by the quality products from the coatings industry? Try this simple little game sometime. From the time you get up in the morning until you go to bed that night, count the number of objects that have a finish on them. You'll find that you'll have a pretty big number of objects that have a finish on them. You'll find that you'll have a pretty big number at the end of the day. A small sampling might include the bed you slept on, the alarm clock that awakened you, the table where you had your breakfast, the fixtures in the bathroom, the kitchen appliances, and the floor you walked on as you went from one room to another. See, we have only named a few and your day hasn't really begun yet. The quality finishes on these products mean a longer-life and a brighter appearance for them, says the National Paint, Varnish and Lacquer Association.

Reds Respect U.S. Goldwater Says

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Republican Sen. Barry Goldwater said Wednesday the measure of peace the world enjoys "is due in very large part" to policies of the Soviet Union.

But he also blamed the Russians for the world's conflicts. "It is they who seek to inflame and incite," he said.

Goldwater said when the Russians forego troublemaking, it is because they respect the "raw strength" of the United States.

Doctors Quit Smoking

CHICAGO — According to a University of Chicago National Opinion Research Center survey, 52% of American doctors do not smoke. Many quit recently due, according to the Anti-Tobacco Center of America, to the conclusive evidence linking cigarettes and lung cancer.

Many doctors gave up smoking without use of will power thanks to a new tablet which helps to progressively eliminate the need for nicotine and, as a result, the desire to smoke. Thanks to this tablet, 88.6% heavy smokers have already stopped smoking.

Smokers interested in receiving information (free) about this new tablet, are invited to contact directly the Anti-Tobacco Center of America, Dept. 148-P-1, 366 Fifth Avenue, New York 1, New York.

Just Between Us — —

—By Bobby Westbrook

It's Valentine's Day! But instead of hearts and flowers I get sun-filled pictures of swimming pools from friends vacationing in the south. Mabel and Bill Nixon, Marion and Jack Baldwin and Peg and Claude Cramer had a gala reunion in Pinehurst before the Nixons and the Baldwins moved on down to Florida.

From Florida came a happy greeting from Boyd and Imogene Weiss and Marty and Henri Baldwin. Somehow, it makes us stay-at-homes seem even more pale, wan and snow-spattered than we really are.

But let's see what we've got that could make them wish they were home. We've got all the side-bar chatter on the progress of the Harris-Small trial. Incidentally there has been a small boom in transistor radios, as witnesses use a recess to listen to the report of what they said.

We've new babies and news of Parent-Teacher meetings. We've got the World Day of Prayer services, but then they have those in Florida, too. We've got a little snow — not much, but what there is is pretty slippery. None of which will probably make them want to fly home in a hurry.

I've got some fascinating company as the Wheelers stopped enroute from the wedding to Oberlin on their way back to Belgrade next week, but so far I haven't had much chance to even see them, let alone ask about all the things I want to know about and find out all the things I want to know.

However, I am the temporary repository for paintings by two of the Yugoslavian artists featured in the Jan. 10 issue of life, one of them painted with match sticks.

We may not be basking in a warm sun, but we have our compensations. We aren't glamorous but we certainly aren't dull. And we do have each other. Happy Valentine!

The meeting marked the first under the new schedule to have refreshments preceding the meeting. Cherry tarts with tiny flags were served from a springtime table by the committee with Mrs. J. H. LaBar as chairman; Mrs. Harold Pine, Mrs. Frank Weiss, Mrs. Iva Holbrook, Miss Julia Sieg, Mrs. Peter Emmons and Mrs. Carroll All. Mrs. All and Mrs. William Gorman, president, poured.

Seven members of the auxiliary plan to attend the Northeast Assn. meeting in West Pittston on Feb. 19 at the Foxhill Country Club. Other members who wish to join them may call Mrs. Gorman.

THE WYCKOFF SHOPPER

LETTER TO TEEN-AGE GIRLS

Dear Teen-er,

Maybe you already know about it; maybe you don't. But here at Wyckoff's we are tying in with that chic, sleek teen-age magazine, "Seventeen" in a nationwide search for teenage fashion models. There are two reasons why we are doing this: one, to promote the teen-age fashions advertised and featured in Seventeen, which are also featured right here on our Wyckoff racks. Second, because we feel very sincerely that right here in the Poconos we have some perfectly adorable girls, as enchanting as any of those whose photographs are often found in magazines. We would love to see one of them selected to have her picture in Seventeen and perhaps go on to a fabulous career in fashion modeling.

When we first announced that we were participating along with 299 other stores in Seventeen's nationwide model quest, the interest was high. Dozens of you came into the store asking for further details, and walked away on a cloud of hope and excitement with your application forms. However, you have been very slow in returning them to us. We feel, from the comments we have heard, that this is because the forms required two 5x7 inch pictures—one of the face, another full length. Let's face it . . . not every teen-age allowance is large enough to encompass these expenditures. As one girl says, "If I were sure I'd win, I'd starve from now until March 6th. But if I don't win, it's a total loss to me. I just can't afford pictures."

Yesterday here at Wyckoff's we discussed this and Bill Wells, our fashion merchandising manager, said, "Let's just tell the girls to return snapshots . . . . . applications. True enough, Seventeen won't accept the snapshots, but the only pictures that are sent into New York anyway are those of the one girl whom our local panel selects to represent this area. So, as far as we are concerned, snapshots are acceptable."

Some girls have asked if their school pictures will do . . . and they will, of course. Others have asked about snapshot enlargements. Checking with Mrs. Predmore of our stationery department, I've learned that a 5x7 snapshot enlargement in black and white will cost 1.00; a colored enlargement of that size is 1.25. The time required is about a week. Our deadline is Saturday, Feb. 29th; our fashion show Friday, March 6th.

We must, however, stay with Seventeen's other requirements as to height . . . 5 ft. 5 to 5 ft. 8, and that entrants be unmarried. There would be no way we could avoid being strict about this, for if a girl were too short, for instance, or had been married, she could not enter the national competition even if our judges were unanimous in selecting her. It is also required that parents give their consent, for if one of the finalists could not go into New York for a week in June, or if she would not dare be pictured in the magazine, there would be no other prize and the magazine would not have a total of ten girls as is desired.

As I mentioned before, we have so many charming, cute-as-a-button girls in our schools and college here . . . so many splendid teen-agers holding jobs . . . it is too bad if any ambitious career-minded girl does not enter. Personally, I feel Monroe County and outlying areas could easily provide Seventeen with a hundred terrific models, and can't understand why they'd even look elsewhere. Why not prove me right, by entering our contest today?

Sincerely,
Madalyn Maloney

Let's talk Fashion

Don't mind us—while we may have our mental shoes off, relaxing from the big fashion show at Camelback, we're more than ready to talk it all over again and to let you see at closehand the clothes you admired so much on our models.

And speaking of models, we wouldn't be surprised if they'd dwindled a whole size in the process of the modeling, what with the hill climb and down hill run necessary to keep the fashion line moving smoothly from the dressing room downstairs to the lounge upstairs.

But somehow they made it and without even puffing, visibly. We were proud of them—and, to be honest, also very proud of our fashions. We liked them on the hangers or we wouldn't have bought them, but to see them worn as they should be worn and all at once made us appreciate them all over again.

They did look simple yet elegant, now yet timeless, and we were as impressed as a mother at a ballet recital at their impact on the audience.

Incidentally there's quite a story about those Dynasty silks which were featured in a show all their own by the New York Couture Group. They are the results of a Rockefeller Foundation venture into international self-help. We're all for self-help, international and personal, and proud as a peacock of the self-help to morale that our clothes contribute to our models and our customers. Who often turn out to be one and the same.

Barrett Twp. School Board Names Lee Filing Official

CANADENSIS — Barrett Township School Board has approved the appointment of Samuel Lee to file reports and make commitments in their behalf in reference to federal reimbursement reports. Lee also does the filing for other schools in the Pocono Mountain Joint School system.

Dr. Edmund Magann said the job would be done faster and smoother with one man in charge rather than various epople handling the numerous details necessary.

The board discussed a request from the Barrett Branch YMCA to use the school one night a week for a group of township boys to practice weightlifting. The request was considered and recommended that the YMCA pick either Monday or Friday night. It was pointed out that the school is open Monday nights for use by the township and would not necessitate an outlay of money by the YMCA.

Any other night would have to be approved by the Pocono Mountain Joint School board and a fee for the school's use would have to be paid. William Helbig, president of the YMCA board, said the matter would be discussed and the results presented to the board at a later date.

A history of bidding in the joint school committee during the past two years was discussed by the board. Dr. Magann pointed out that a number of items are bid by the school when according to state law it is not necessary.

Arthur McCambridge treasurer, reported that property taxes received to date totaled $5,043.30. Per capita taxes totaled $1,197, and tax returns netted $359.97.

Federal reimbursement was $1,761 and income from miscelsources, $22.99. The savings aclaneous sources, $22.99. The savings account balance stood at $53,383.86. A motion was passed empowering McCambridge to withdraw sufficient funds from the savings account to be placed in the checking account to cover indebtedness for the February and March bills.

Flash Elorde Meets Ortiz

MANILA (AP)—Filipino Flash Elorde admits he has a tough job ahead when he challenges Carlos Ortiz of Puerto Rico and New York for the world lightweight championship Saturday night, but he thinks he has an even chance of winning.

"I know I will have to go through the needle's eye," Elorde said Thursday, using a popular Filipino expression. "But I think I'll have a 50-50 chance."

Rote To Quit?

NEW YORK (AP)— Kyle Rote is expected to quit his job as assistant coach of the New York Giants in the near future to concentrate on his duties as a broadcaster.

A spokesman for the National Football League club said Thursday that no replacement would be named until Rote made a definite announcement of his plans. He said Harry Wright, former head coach at the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy, probably would be one of those under consideration if Rote decides to quit.

NFL Night Games Go On Despite College Protests

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The American Broadcasting Co. announced Thursday that it definitely is going ahead with plans to televise five Friday night National Football League games despite protests from colleges and high schools.

The colleges and high schools insist it is an infringement on their traditional Friday night domain and violates a 1961 federal statute dealing with antitrust legislation in sports.

The ABC, in confirming an earlier report on the projected five games, said there is no violation because the programming deals are being made with the individual clubs and not with the league itself.

Names Sponsor

The ABC said Ford Motor Co. would sponsor the Friday night pro games. The particular games, or clubs involved, were not named. It is understood one of the teams will be Cleveland.

Pete Rozelle, commissioner of the National Football League, said:

"This is an academic question. The National Football League has not made up its 1964 schedule, and will not do so for six weeks. The league has no contract with the ABC.

"The law of 1961 states that the National Football League cannot make a package deal with a single network to televise games on Friday night, Saturday afternoon or Saturday night.

"Also, there is a specification that no game can be televised within 75 miles of a college game. If the deal is made between ABC and the member clubs individually, the 75-mile rule will be rigidly observed.

75-Mile Radius

"There will be no game within 75 miles of a college contest."

The ABC said that television agreements with individual clubs always have been valid and added:

"The proposed broadcasts would be a great public service, affording opportunity to enjoy professional football in prime evening time."

The proposed plan drew immediate blasts from both the colleges and high schools.

Asa Bushnell, commissioner of the Eastern College Athletic Conference and director of the college TV program, said he was "disturbed by the report."

"This is a matter for inquiry and investigation. It is a problem for the lawyers," he added.

He said the plan violated the spirit, if not the wording of the 1961 law.

Similar Protest

A similar protest came from the National Federation of State High School Athletic Associations, with a membership of more than 12,000.

Cliff Fagan, federation executive secretary, said he will send a letter of complaint to Rozelle as his group's first step in "protecting the interests" of member schools.

The five games in question were held out of the big package sold recently to Columbia Broadcasting System for $14.1 million a year.

Bushnell said that he felt such a move by the pros contravened the spirit if not the wording of a federal statute stipulating that the National Football League could not sell a package calling for Friday night or Saturday games.

"Economic Health"

"This provision was intended to protect the economic health of college and high school football," Bushnell said.

Actually the law, spelling out exemption of sports from some antitrust legislation, is so worded that it covers only cases of a single network or package — deal.

The pros might argue that the law does not concern this particular arrangement, since the clubs would be making the deals privately and not in conjunction with the league as a whole.

However, the danger to college and high school attendance on those particular nights would appear as great, and the colleges and high schools seem ready to fight it to the hilt.

Prime Time

Many colleges, particularly in the South, play games on Friday nights. Also, this is the prime time for the 12,360 high schools belonging to the National Federation of High Schools. Around 85 per cent of the high school games are played Friday nights.

"This would hit at the grass roots of all athletics," said one high school spokesman.

Bushnell said that if he and his college television committee do not get satisfactory explanations from the AFL and ABC, a formal protest would be made. He didn't say he would go all the way to the courts, but there seemed such an inference.

Hoop Playoffs Approach Fast

HARRISBURG (AP)—Playoff time is fast approaching in the 1964 scholastic basketball race with all but one of last year's Class A district champs still in the running.

The lone casualty is Knoch of District 9 which has dropped 11 of 18 contests and stands 5-6 in the Butler County League.

Punxsutawney looks like the new district king with heavy pressure from Brookville and Bradford.

The Chucks boast an impressive 13-2 slate and are 6-1 in their league. Brookville and Bradford follow with league charts of 6-2 and 5-2.

Strong Bids

Making strong bids for repeat titles are Plymouth-Whitemarsh, Scranton Central, Harrisburg Penn, Danville, Johnstown, Peabody, Erie Tech and powerful Catasauqua.

Bedford and Somerset are battling for District 5 honors, while Norwin faces a raft of opposition in District 7.

Plymouth-Whitemarsh, which won its first Class A state championship in history last year, blew a 38 game winning streak this season, but still ranks as the big favorite in District 1.

Uniontown, the Class A king in 1962, Midland, Mount Lebanon and New Castle are among the teams threatening to unseat Norwin.

Name-teams in District 2 are Scranton Central, West Hazleton, Kingston and Plymouth. Central is 10-0 in the Lackawanna League but West Hazleton has gone over 100 points five different times in its march to a 17-1 mark.

Lebanon, Reading and Steelton-Highspire are pressing Harrisburg Penn in the Central Penn League and District 3.

Another battle is developing in District 11 between Catasauqua, Pottsville, Allentown Dieruff, Allentown Allen and Mahanoy Area.

The Roughriders, spearheaded by high scoring Larry Miller, are making shambles of the Lehigh Valley League, but its a different story in the East Penn Conference.

Pottsville, which won the first half title, has given way to the two Allentown schools in the second half. Other darkhorses are Nazareth and Parkland, the pace - setters in the Lehigh-Northampton League.

In District 10, Erie Tech is fighting it out with Erie Strong Vincent, Erie Academy and McDowell for Section One honors, then must face opposition from Meadville, Warren, Hickory, or Sharpsville of the Section Two and Three conferences.

A Tossup

The Pittsburgh City League championship also looks like a tossup between Peabody, Fifth Avenue and South Hills.

Danville and Johnstown figure to have the easiest rides to a repeat title. The Ironmen have suffered only one loss in 15 games, while Johnstown, an independent, is 15-2.

Insults Swapped By Clay, Liston

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Cassius Clay and Sonny Liston swapped insults Thursday in an unusual news conference carried by closed - circuit television from their Miami Beach training camps to a laboratory on Long Island.

Clay boxed one fast round, concentrating on moving backward. Liston pummeled the heavy bag for three minutes. Then they settled back for questions at their separate camps for newsmen located some 1,500 miles away.

The conference was arranged by Theater Network Television, which will carry the Feb. 25 heavyweight title fight.

"I'm going to upset the whole world," said Clay who is known as the Louisville Lip and with good reason.

In a quick aside he asked "Which camera is on?"

Clay went into his routine, more expansive than ever.

"I'm predicting eight to prove I'm great," he rhymed. "If he whups me, I'm leaving the country. I'm bigger than he is. I'll be about 221 pounds. This is not going to be a giant fighting any Floyd Patterson."

Switch Cameras

After listening to Clay promise again that, if he loses, he will crawl across the ring on his hands and knees and kiss Liston's shoes, the cameras switched to Liston, located several blocks north of Clay's camp.

Sonny sat at ringside at the Surfside Auditorium with a white towel over his head and beads of sweat standing on his face. His eyes never blinked.

Kansas City Pleas To A. L. President

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Kansas City officials, apparently hopelessly deadlocked with owner Charles O. Finley of the Athletics in negotiations for a stadium lease, tossed the ball Thursday to President Joe Cronin and the other club owners in the American League.

The seventh in a series of conferences between Finley and city officials over the lease ended Wednesday night with no settlement in sight.

Finley, who has sought to move the baseball club to Louisville and Oakland, Calif., insisted he would not consider anything longer than a two-year contract with Kansas City. The city said it would consider nothing shorter than four years.

No Answer

Meanwhile, Sen. Edward V. Long, D-Mo., proposed that Senate investigators subpoena Finey along with financial records relating to his club. Long is a member of the Senate antitrust and monopoly investigating subcommittee. The subcommittee said Thursday it has received no answer to its invitations to Finley to testify at a public hearing next Tuesday.

Long said he and other Missouri and Kansas lawmakers are ready to "use every means at our command" to keep American League baseball in Kansas City.

"This fellow looks more and more to me like he considers baseball to be a cold-blooded business," Long said. "He appears not to be concerned with the sporting part of the game or the fans."

The American League already has fixed Saturday midnight as a deadline to reach an agreement with the city on the lease or face possible expulsion from baseball and loss of his franchise. Finley has threatened court action if his control of the club is challenged.

Long Telegram

Mayor Ilus W. Davis and other Kansas City officials sent a long telegram to Cronin Thursday reviewing the latest deadlock.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Friday, February 14, 1964

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Where you can step up impetus and incentive, don't hesitate; there's much to accomplish now. Handle small tasks as efficiently and enthusiastically as the larger ones.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Planetary influences favorable. Don't flounder about without a set and clear target. Know where you stand and what you intend to accomplish. Then the doing will be truly effective, stimulating.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — More research needed; be sure of facts in making decisions, even ordinary conversation. Be careful in legal matters, real estate, bargaining; don't overlook details.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Self - reliance and optimism stimulated now. Seek better understanding with associates. Promote sound ventures; some spending may be necessary to insure gains.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Give good offerings a chance to prove themselves — especially if investigated and found to be potentially lucrative. Blocking pertinent discussion only postpones, complicates problems.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — Employ the techniques successfully used in prior efforts. But do not hesitate to up date plans and vitalize your approach. Tact in personal affairs.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — While you await new developments or results of efforts, proceed with other good plans, ideas. Don't sit back satisfied with previous plans — or gains.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — A day in which to curb your natural Martian aggressiveness with intelligent self - discipline, moderation. Avoid extremes.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Neither fear to step into a new or changed picture, nor step too quickly before you are ready. Know your ground sufficiently and that of associates, too. Shun gossip.

December 23 to January 20 (Capricorn) — Speak in discreet words, with temperance and compassion foremost - it will work wonders now. Opposition? Can be a healthy challenge; Self-control.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) — Give careful thought to decisions you must make soon. Try to understand thoroughly the involvements of the next few days. Do not be misled by your emotions.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) — Influences highly stimulating. Overzeal, overreaching may tempt. Hasty words and deeds could cause endless redoing and undoing; leave scars, too. Be a moderate you.

YOU BORN TODAY are able to concentrate and produce the unusual; are quick to understand methods and their potential; a keen observer from an early age. People confide in you, and you can efface yourself and draw others out in a pleasing way. You make an able companion, nurse, doctor.

THIS is a Daily Record want ad. It's one of the oldest forms of advertising still in use today.

The BIG Buy!

This is a three-line classified ad.

It costs Daily Record advertisers $3.36 for this ad on the weekly, 7-time rate. That figures out to only 48c per day!

It's not very big in size. It's not very imposing. And it doesn't cost very much as you can see. In fact, it looks pretty lonesome up there all by itself. But look at it this way.

What you get when you buy a three-line ad in The Daily Record is not just a single ad on one of the want ad pages. You've actually bought 10,150 copies of your three-line ad. And the price includes personal delivery of each copy to the reader's doorstep.

Just imagine the cost of reaching all those Daily Record families by post card. Why the postage alone would be $406.00! But The Daily Record does it all for you for a measly 48c per day. (For only $3.36 we'll do it seven times straight!)

So you can see this little want ad is really a pretty BIG buy!

WANTED FOR EXCESS BUYING!

2017220

That, Ray Roberts, 37 year old partner in feed, farm and home supply, lawn and garden business, did during the months of October through January of 1963-64, to wit: purchase excessive quantities of various quality products, which led to his company's money being tied-up in inventory. Subject was last seen sneaking around various supplier's warehouses trying to make more "good buys". NOTE: If found, approach him with caution—as he is ARMED with bargain prices, special deals and praise for GLF's products.

REWARD!

If captured (and we'd prefer it to be alive since he is wearing a company uniform) your reward will be to take advantage of these special prices.

Cy Barrett Says

Job Security Lost

By Cyrus Barrett, Jr.

DEAR CY:

A year ago, you told readers job security was a thing of the past. I didn't believe you then. Since that time, our company was bought out and many of us who had been working here 20 years were let go. They shifted operations out of town. I got into business for myself making a new sports equipment item. No sooner did I sell a few wholesalers than imitators produced the same thing at lower prices and put me out of business. I am now in another job, hating job insecurity but imitators more. There's no telling what will happen with new products.

BEASLEY

DEAR BEASLEY:

In New York's densely populated garment district, stealing ideas is the granite foundation. As new creations hit the market, they are copied and sold for prices (or "knocked off"). Manufacturers know an item has been knocked off when readers suddenly fail to materialize. Indicative of the apparel - copying creed is the case of the manufacturer who was planning to entertain 150 buyers at lunch.

He summoned the office boy and told him to run over to Broadway and buy 10 different sandwiches at a fancy restaurant. In amazement, the runner blurted, "But. . .ten sandwiches will never feed a hundred and fifty people!" The boss retorted off - handedly, "When you get back, take your sandwiches to the corner delicatessen and have them copied." A study of the garment industry can be a look into the future of merchandising many categories of consumer goods.

CY

DEAR CY:

Before this year is over, I am going to crack into foreign markets for our company. In gathering data, the U.S. department of commerce has been helpful. I learned Japan Air Lines will print my company calling cards in Japanese for $5 to $10 per hundred. What airlines offer travelling businessmen help for European travel?

MAX PEKORA

DEAR MAX:

Practically every overseas air carrier will help with information and other courtesies to make a businessman's trip productive. If you are planning to drill into the European market, you may wish a copy of Pan Am's "Guide to Business Customs in Europe."

It warns against being too brusque, saying "No matter how many times you meet another businessman during the day, you are expected to shake hands with him at each meeting and parting. The underlying reason for this custom goes rather deep.

It has to do with the regard a Continental has for another's person rather than his position. One indication of this view sometimes appears in the form of an unexpected reluctance to do business with you until you have become a friend.

As a friend, trustworthiness can be taken for granted." In an epic diplomatic understatement of how not to dynamite your way through modern Europe, the booklet suggests: "The less hectic pace of the warmer countries should be taken in reduced stride." Write Pan Am at P.O. Box 431, Boston, Massachusetts.

CY

DEAR CY:

If I agree to pay the internal revenue service men a little something, will they speed up my refund? Beginning last year, I had two income tax exemptions. . .my wife and baby. We had another child born during the year, so I should get about $100 refunded from the internal revenue service on withholding tax for my $7,000 income. How can I expedite my tax refund?

HOUSEHOLD HEAD

DEAR H. H.:

The best way to expedite a federal income tax refund is to file early and mark "REFUND" boldy on the envelope. The internal revenue boys don't spark to special offers. As per the man who wrote IRS this message, accompanying his return: "Please note new exemption which is my mother-in-law. If you could arrange her removal from my home, I will gladly pay the $125 she saves me as a deduction."

CY

"35 WAYS TO RAISE MONEY FOR YOUR CHURCH OR CLUB." A copy of this booklet is yours for 20 cents and a stamped, self - addressed envelope sent to Cy Barrett, c-o this newspaper.

For answers to your Personal Business Questions, write Cy Barrett, c-o this newspaper. Include stamped, self - addressed return envelope.

Ronson Corp. To Build Plant

WOODBRIDGE, N. J. — Ronson Hydraulic Units Corp, of Pasadena, Cal., a wholly owned aircraft subsidiary of the Ronson Corporation, will build a 55,000 sq. ft. plant in Duarte, Cal., it was announced by Louis V. Aronson II, president of the parent corporation. Ronson owns a plant in Delaware Water Gap.

Aronson said that the Bechtel Corp. of Los Angeles will complete architects' and engineering plans this month. Construction will begin in April. The building, to be located on a 17-acre tract, is scheduled for occupancy by November 1.

More than $1,000,000, Aronson said, will be spent on the new plant and its equipment. The facility will double the California company's present capacity for manufacturing hydraulic valves, cylinders and other parts for the West Coast aviation industry.

Hearing Due On Mine Safety

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Rules Committee will hold a hearing next week on a bill to extend the small mine safety law to operations employing less than 15 persons, Rep. John H. Dent, D-Pa., said Monday.

The rules committee scheduled legislation for House action.

The small mine safety bill has already been approved by the House Labor Committee.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
